No Dash to Europe? Good!
A New, Long Word.
Tom Kupina's Blindness.
All 70, All Strong.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE STATEMENT that President Roosevelt, just before the end of the London conference, would dash over in theatrical fashion, on a warship, is again denied, to the public satisfaction.

Woodrow Wilson did enough trans-Atlantic "dashing" to last this country for some time. He was well received, had one of the best bedrooms in Buckingham Palace, the King and Queen even met him at the railroad station.

But that "dash to Europe" cost the people of the United States many men and ten thousand million dollars. That's too much to pay, even for a few nights' lodging in Buckingham Palace.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S reputation for getting things done has spread to London. In the House of Commons yesterday a Labor member, Josiah B. Wedgewood, told Neville Chamberlain to his face:

"The people of Britain would rather have Franklin D. Roosevelt as chancellor of the exchequer than Neville Chamberlain."

Cries of "No! No! No!" from government benches were not convincing. A Conservative named Boothby sided with the Labor member, saying:

"When Mr. Roosevelt said he was going to raise prices the world believed he would do it. And when Mr. Chamberlain said he hoped to raise prices, nobody belived that he would do so, by his policy."

By good work in America, President Roosevelt can get all the reputation he wants in London, without any "dash" to a meaningless conference.

A NEW LONG word swims into your ken, to keep company with "relativity, erg, neutron, positron, quantum theory, heizenberg principle of uncertainty, etc.

"COMPLEMENTARITY" is the new word, introduced by the learned Dane, Neils Bohr, "godfather of the modern, complicated atom."

To some, this complementarity makes Einstein's relativity seem childishly simple. A lifetime consists of the "ponderables and imponderables," things that can be weighed and that can't be weighed, in the material and the mental world.

We lead a dual life and each half forever contradicts the other. Man's brain leads a Jekyl and Hyde existence.

THIS "SELF contradicting duality" may some time go to join the "vortex theory" and other rejected speculations. Meanwhile, "complementarity" is the word, and Samuel Johnson, who said, "Sir, we know the will is free, and there is an end of it," would have to say now:

"Sir, the will is free sometimes in our duality and sometimes it is not free."

AT SUDBURY, Ontario, Canadian courts and medical experts are puzzled by Tom Kupina, who thinks he is blind but is not blind, only hysteria alone interfering with his sight. His suit against an insurance company for "total and irrevocable loss of sight of both eyes" is dismissed. His sight will come back suddenly when hysteria, caused by a mine explosion, passes off.

So much for Tom Kupina.

MANY WISE scientists tell you all about the universe, how its size and the amount of matter and energy is limited, how you can sail all around it in a "few hundred million light years," how it is destined to run down and end some day, perhaps only a few million billion years from now.

Those wise persons, unlike Mr. Kupina, think they see what they do not see.

DAY BEFORE yesterday, eight men that had rowed on the Harvard crew in 1883, fifty years before, all rowed together and all were past seventy years of age, and their 1883 coxswain steered them. All of them are successful professional and business men.

This discourages the suggestion that collegiate rowing is bad for the heart and shortens life.

A university that teaches men to take care of themselves, live long and return fifty years after graduation in good physical condition, is more valuable than one that merely teaches boys to win races or football games.

UNITED STATES government agents raided a bootleg alcohol plant in New York yesterday, seized a truckload of alcohol. A group of hijackers appeared, took the truck and the alcohol away from the government agents, all within one block of a police station.

The hijackers, professional killers presumably, took away the guns of the government men, and a little later sent them back politely, wrapped in a package. The government agents, evidently considerably confused, said that they could not tell whether there were four or twenty hijackers. Professionals usually beat amateurs.

NOW THAT BIG banks no longer pay interest on deposits, under the banking arrangement, big city banks will, apparently, no longer have the pleasure of playing with the money of little country banks. Out-of-town banks drew from New York yesterday $196,000,000. Not getting any interest, they think they might as well keep the money at home.

2 MORE CONVICTED IN GAS FRAUD

JURY URGES MERCY FOR ROUTLEY, BENZ

Former Little Dictator Of County Shocked By Verdict

James E. (Jim) Routley, once the "little dictator" of the County Commissioners' office, and C. C. Benz, former County Purchasing Department clerk, were found guilty today of conspiracy to defraud the county in diversion of gasoline to private automobiles.

They were recommended to the extreme mercy of the court.

After six hours' deliberation the jury at midnight reached the verdict which was read at the opening of court today before Judge S. H. Gardner, sitting for Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, who presided at the trial.

Routley's jaw dropped and he stared incredulously at the jury as the verdict was read. Benz was unperturbed.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT

Former Congressman Harry A. Estep, for Routley, and Attorney John B. Nicklas, for Benz, gave notice they would file a motion for a new trial.

The maximum penalty is two years imprisonment and $500 fine.

The jury directed that the county pay half the costs, Routley 40 per cent and Benz 10 per cent. Judge Gardner threw out that part of the verdict as conviction automatically placed costs on the defendants.

Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair prosecuted the case.

Today's convictions brought the total to four. William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the commissioners, and Howard B. Allen, former head of the County Motor Division, were adjudged guilty of similar charges by Judge Sylvester J. Snee. They have appealed to Superior Court. Routley was Ziefel's assistant.

FOUR AWAIT TRIAL

Defendants remaining to be tried are Edward M. Kenna, former county road commissioner, owner of the Peoples Service Station, where gas is alleged to have been bought by employes and their friends and charged to the county; John J. Gallagher, C. W. Doherty, former Elections Bureau clerk, and Patrick J. Swift.

The former county employes were caught in the net of the county audit.

Auditor M. C. Conick testified that Routley had obtained 11,149 gallons of gasoline valued at $2,416, and Benz, 2,993 gallons, valued at $669, for their personal use, for which the taxpayers footed the bill.

The defendants contended the gasoline was used in connection with county business.

Dorothy Armstrong, daughter of the late Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, testified she had gasoline charged at the Peoples Service Station, but supposed the bill would be sent to her father. Audit of the accounts showed her gas charged to Routley and paid for by the county.

Mother in Paris?

AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON

Evangelist McPherson, whose husband, David Hutton, can't believe the Parisian cablegram that carried her name, announced to him in Los Angeles that she has become the mother of a nine-pound boy!

3 FOUND GUILTY IN THEFTS

Three men accused of receiving stolen goods in connection with the robbery of freight trucks on the William Penn and Lincoln highways near New Alexandria Pa., were found guilty in Criminal Court today.

They are Benjamin Bond, of McKeesport, Louis Essner, of Duquesne, and Haenry Samovitz, of Braddock. Sentence was postponed by Judge Samuel H. Gardned pending their motion for a new trial.

Leon Friedman, of Pittsburgh and Fred Hoffman, of McKeesport, were acquitted by the jury, and a directed verdict of not guilty was brought in for Harry Soffer, of Duquesne, and D. J. Fogel, of Morgantown, W. Va.

The three found guilty were alleged to have received quantities of refrigerators, washing machines and tires in connection with robberies to which Patrick and Raymond Tierno, brothers, pleaded guilty recently. The brothers are to be sentenced Monday.

3 Fliers Die, Widow Rescued

DAVE DOUBTS AIMEE HAS BABY BOY

Skeptical of Cable Reporting Stork's Visit in Paris

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP.)—A mysterious cablegram reporting the birth of a nine-pound son to Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton in a Paris hospital was received last night by her husband, David L. Hutton, Jr., who branded the message as "ridiculous" as he ordered a telegraph company to trace the sender.

The cablegram, dated June 23 and addressed to Hutton at his wife's church, Angelus Temple, read:

"Darling boy. Nine pound son. Doing splendidly. Understand press inquisitive but keeping quiet."

The message was signed "Adoringly Wife."

Temple officials, including Miss Harriet Jordan, manager, and friends of the noted evangelist, said they considered the cable a hoax. They declared:

"Somebody with a motive sent that."

And Hutton said:

"My wife would have let me know about this long ago. Besides I know that motherhood is impossible for her. There isn't a word of truth in it. It's ridiculous and I have ordered the telegraph company to trace the sender."

The cablegram arrived nearly 24 hours after Hutton announced through his new manager, Harry C. Brandon, he had severed all connections with the temple and intended entering a film career.

RUMORS OF DIVORCE

A few hours after Hutton announced severing connections with the temple, Willedd Andrews, temple attorney, refused to affirm or deny a report Mrs. Hutton intends to establish a legal residence in Paris by July 8 and sue Hutton for divorce.

He indicated that on July 8 Mrs. Hutton would have a "highly important announcement concerning the future of Angelus Temple and other matters," but he declined to augment his statement.

BLAME STUDENT PRANK

PARIS, June 24.—(INS.)—A college student's prank was suspected today in the sending of a cablegram to David Hutton, Jr., husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, informing him he is the "father" of a nine-pound son.

The cablegram, International News Service learned, was dispatched from a telegraph booth in the offices of the American Express Company by a woman supposed to have been identified as Bernice Middleton, a friend of the evangelist.

Meanwhile, there was increasing evidence that Mrs. Hutton actually is in Paris, although the mystery surrounding her whereabouts deepened by the hour.

'RIDE' LAID TO RACKET WARFARE

Entertainer, Beaten, Blames Rulers of Slot Machines

"Taken for a ride," L. Carl (Rudy) Poppel, entertainer and former night club proprietor, recovered sufficiently today to ask police to search for four assailants whom he described as disgruntled mobsters of a slot machine ring.

Less than two days after he returned from Florida, Poppel was attacked as he left a Sixth street cabaret early Thursday, bundled into an automobile and taken to a lonely spot in the North Side where he was beaten and kicked insensible, he said.

Once, he told police, he leaped out of the car, only to be picked up again by the men, and dragged into an alley, where police found him. He was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital where five stitches were placed above his left eye. He also suffered body injuries.

Poppel told police "the finger was on him" because of his refusal to install slot machines in his Villa Ritz roadhouse on the Butler plank road two years ago.

Shot at twice, and his place a target for gang bullets on another occasion, Poppel told police he was forced to quit his place and leave the city two years ago.

He said he fled to Florida, and returned to Pittsburgh this week to be a witness in an automobile case pending in the courts here.

He said he noticed his enemies in the Sixth street place, but failed in an effort to outwait them. He was unable to give police their names, but furnished them with good descriptions.

BAN BOX BOMB SUSPECTS HELD

Five men, two of whom, according to police, have been identified as the bombers of the Ban Box night club, were held for further investigation at a preliminary hearing today in Central Police Court before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Detective Lieut. Edward Harkins asked that the men be held over, but did not reveal which of the five he had connected with the bombing. All are being held on suspicious person charges.

The prisoners gave their names as William Ramon, 22, of 421 Laven street, Wilmerding; James Marciano, 25, of 130 State street, Wilmerding; Joseph Rose, 30, of 1849 Funston street; Frank Ruffo, 24, of 812 Fifth avenue, and Louis Busa, 32, of 604 Larimer avenue.

Lieut. Edward Harkins and Homicide Detectives Robert Carroll, Nathan Averbach and James O'Kane said they arrested the men in front of an olive oil store at 602 Larimer avenue, which they had been watching for three weeks in their investigation of the bombing.

The sleuths searched the store and in the desks they reported finding books and papers which contained the names of purchasers of alcohol. Behind each name was the address and amount in gallons. No alcohol was found in the place.

The Income Tax and Law Enforcement

CHARLES E. MITCHELL, former head of the National City Bank, has been acquitted of the charge of income tax evasion.

As a matter of fact, juries do not CONVICT on charges of income tax evasion.

Income taxation is regarded by the average citizen as outrageous extortion and infamous interference with popular rights.

Evading the income tax law, therefore, is considered to be quite as legitimate a procedure as evading the prohibition law.

There is, in fact, very little difference in the character or in the evil effects or in the unpopularity of these two measures, or in the constant and condoned endeavor to evade them.

There is also very little difference in the widespread disrespect for law and for government which these two mistaken measures have aroused throughout the whole body politic.

BOTH of these measures are extremely difficult to enforce, both are extremely expensive to operate, both call for an army of snoopers and sneakers, and arrogant and unfair investigators and enforcers.

Both are clogs on prosperity, a burden on legitimate business.

Both are at variance with the fundamental principle of liberty and equality which are the foundation stones of our republic.

Both encourage crookedness and crime, and both stimulate the discontent and dissatisfaction which express themselves in bolshevist sentiments and activities.

Both are menaces to free government and should be abolished.

ANY political party desiring a winning issue has one at hand—opposition to the oppressive and offensive income tax.

The Democratic party came into power largely because of its pledge to repeal the unpopular prohibition law.

Another party can come into power by promising to abolish the income tax law.

The two great wartime legislative mistakes of this country are prohibition and the income tax.

The two great opportunities for present day political success lie in opposition to these un-American measures.

The Democratic party has taken advantage of one of these opportunities.

Will the Republican party take advantage of the other?

MEN DROWN TO SAVE WOMAN

Lone Survivor, Adrift 33 Hours, Relates Lake Crash Horrors

KEWANEE, Wis., June 24.—(INS.)—Horribly blistered from the sun and near collapse, Mrs. Charles Rennie, Jr., 27, sole survivor of an airplane crash in Lake Michigan that took the lives of three men, today told of a dramatic 33-hour battle for life in the cold waters of the lake.

Mrs. Rennie, the wife of a Traverse City (Mich.) oil company executive and the mother of three children, was rescued last night by a car ferry of the Ann Arbor fleet and brought here.

The dead are her 29-year-old husband; his uncle, James Gillette, 28, and a mechanic, Peter Keller, 24.

Through parched lips she told doctors on her arrival here that the three men apparently had given up their lives that she might cling to a battered gasoline tank that they had torn from the sinking airplane.

The plane left Traverse City for Milwaukee at 10 a. m. Thursday, she related, and ran into a fog. Unable to recognize fog from water, the pilot, Gillette, dropped the plane into the lake when he attempted a landing.

As the wreckage sank, the three tore away the gasoline tank, emptied its contents and used it as a float, placing Mrs. Rennie upon its top.

The combined weight of the three men constantly threatened to pull the tank under, she said, and at dusk Thursday, Gillette, pilot and owner of the pontoon-equipped plane, pleaded exhaustion and slipped beneath the waves. She said:

"I think he did it because he feared he was overbalancing the tank."

Near dawn yesterday Keller, too, disappeared.

For four hours, Rennie and his wife remained afloat together, but Rennie was fast losing his strength. Mrs. Rennie said:

"As the sun climbed higher, Charles said he couldn't hold on any longer. The waves were getting higher and he said I could get along better alone."

Then a boat passed, but did not see their signals for aid. The widow said:

"Charles lost hope as the boat disappeared, and although I pleaded with him to stay he gave me his watch and ring, kissed me and said goodbye, slipping down and away. It was terrible."

Balbo's Air Armada To Start Tomorrow

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 24.—(AP.)—Air officials received reports today that the weather in the Alps was clearing, and they announced that tomorrow morning the Italian air armada would take off on the first leg of the mass flight to Chicago.

Gen. Italo Balbo, air minister, had considered the possibility of changing his course in order to avoid the Alps. Then he received the welcome news that flying conditions in the mountains were improving.

5 SHOTS FIRED IN CHASE

Five shots were fired by a South Side policeman early today as he pursued John Selinsky, 26, of 2806 Sarah street, from the yard of the home of Dr. H. H Shaw, of 2323 Carson street, police reported.

Police visited Dr. Shaw's home on receipt of a telephone call from the physician saying prowlers were in his home. As they arrived Selinsky came from the rear of the building, police said. He attempted to escape. He was arrested after a short chase.

An alleged companion of Selinsky, John Murphy, 32, no home, was arrested, police said, when he left the Shaw home. He was trapped by police in a blind alley.

Slain Man's Brother To See Maug Clothes

Robert Jossen, of Charleroi, with Police Chief Alex Murray, were to examine the clothing worn by John Maug when he and Edward Turpac were captured in Cleveland. Chief Murray said he would accompany Jossen to the penitentiary, probably on Monday, to view the clothes.

Jossen believes the clothing may furnish a clue to the murderers of his brother, Eugene, found dead in a box car in Big Springs, Tex., on June 14.

Mystery Air Raiders Terrify Berlin In 'Slanderous' Attack on Hitler

Nazis Press Fight to Absorb Labor and Churches

By HUDSON HAWLEY
International News Service.

BERLIN, June 24.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's re-awakened Germany was up in arms today after a squadron of mysterious airplanes paid a surprise visit to Berlin, terrifying residents.

Government circles, amazed and alarmed by the visit, launched an immediate campaign to determine responsibility for the "air raid" while Chancellor Hitler's newspaper berated the Treaty of Versailles, which denies an air force to Germany.

The planes, flying at an altitude of several thousand feet, dropped thousands of pamphlets containing what officials said were "slanderous attacks against the new Germany and Chancellor Hitler."

Police immediately mobilized private sport planes, which ascended in pursuit, but were unable to catch the faster foreign machines, which disappeared at top speed.

Meanwhile, encouraged by his success in crushing the power of political parties out of sympathy with his regime, Hitler moved to co-ordinate German religion and labor under the swastika flag.

As the first step in unification of Protestant churches in Prussia, Bernhard Rust, Minister of Culture, was appointed special commissar with powers to reorganize Prussian churches in line with the policies of the Hitler regime.

Other measures included dissolution of all existing youth organizations, including the Boy Scouts.

As Hitler set out to crush the Christian labor unions, storm troopers raided headquarters of the unions throughout the nation.

The raids on the Christian unions followed similar action against the Socialist trade unions some weeks ago.

Leader of Hitlerite Party in Austria Seized in Escape

VIENNA, June 24.—(AP.)—The Austrian government answered the defiance of the Nazi party today by arresting Alfred Frauenfeld, leader of the party, at Villach in Carinthia where, it was alleged, he planned to cross the border into Italy.

This action was taken after the bombardment of the city of Linz yesterday by Nazi handbills dropped from airplanes. These handbills threatened a new fight on the regime of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

Rodgers' Wife, Mother Signal Macon Here

The dirigible Macon, sister ship of the ill-fated Akron, with its lights sparkling like stars, sailed over Pittsburgh last night on its way to Lakehurst, N. J.

As the huge ship passed over Knoxville, Lieut. Com. Bertram J. Rodgers, engineer officer, waved a flashlight out of the control car window to his mother, Mrs. Clara E. Rodgers, of 310 Orchard street, his wife and his sister, Miss Blanche M. Rodgers. They, in turn, signaled back with an electric light.

Today, Rodgers' mother said:

"I wish that I had been in the Macon. I think that lighter-than-air craft is just the thing. When they take women along some day, I'll take a ride."

Rodgers's wife drove here yesterday from Akron, O., with their four children. She said she would continue her trip to Lakehurst, where she will meet her husband.

The $2,450,000 dirigible, largest in the world, left Akron late yesterday and passed over Pittsburgh a few minutes before midnight. Commander Alger Dresel skippered the ship of 82 men. The dirigible arrived at Lakehurst at 3:18 a. m., and was made fast to a stub mooring mast at 4:20 a. m.

U. S. TO LAUNCH $400,000,000 ROAD PROGRAM IN JULY

30-HOUR WORK WEEK LIMIT PUT ON JOBS

Army and Navy Press Construction Schedule

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP.)—Road building on a huge scale will get under way early next month to become the first big expenditure in President Roosevelt's campaign for re-employment and economic recovery.

Allocation to states of the $400,000,000 highway fund has been completed by the public works board.

Promulgated today were rules for spending it: Thirty hours' work a week with fixed minimum pay will govern all contracts; no convict labor will be permitted, machinery must give way to pick and shovel; the actual projects must be widely scattered.

The road money will be available on July 1, when President Roosevelt returns. He expects to be able to approve immediately thereafter appointment of state public works administrators who will direct expenditure of more than $1,000,000,000 under the entire $3,300,000,000 public works program.

Meanwhile, pressing close behind the roads plan for an immediate start, the Army has drafted a $135,000,000 housing and construction plan, now being scrutinized by a works board committee for report next week.

The Navy Department, pushing its extensive ship construction plans, sought arrangements to have the 30-hour work week applied to all its shipyard contracts. The requirement probably will be written into the call for bids on the half of the 32-vessel program which will go to private builders. Similar regulation will control the construction in Navy yards.

PARLEY SWINGS TO U. S. VIEW ON PRICES

Committee Submits Plan for Boost On Products

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, June 24.—Emerging from a welter of criticism and hostility, the first indication came today that many nations desire to climb aboard the American price-raising bandwagon and quit knocking the American attitude toward the World Economic Conference.

This change of heart on the part of European nations was revealed when the drafting committee of the economic commission submitted the outline of a proposed agreement to raise wholesale prices of important world primary products by coordinating production and marketing.

REPORT SUPPORTED

Foreign delegates were interested in knowing whether the United States would take advantage of the technically improved position created by the drafting committee's report, which was supported by the leading producers of cereals, cotton, tobacco, sugar, coffee, cocoa, wine, rubber and meat throughout the world.

The American delegation, it was learned, looked upon the report as proof of its contention currency stabilization can wait upon more important measures. One member said:

"As a result of the committee's proposal, the United States is now in a position to tell the conference that it disproves the contention of the gold countries that continuation of the conference is impossible without stabilization.

"The United States is doing more to raise prices than any other country. If international machinery is established to spread this price-raising tendency throughout the world, the gold standard and stabilization will take care of themselves.

"Premier MacDonald yesterday indicated Britain was ready to support this view."

FRENCH CABINET FIRM

PARIS, June 24.—(AP.)—The cabinet today unanimously approved the French stand at the World Economic Conference for the gold standard and for regulation of world production.

The action was taken at a three-hour session after a full report on the London parley had been made by Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, one of the French delegates to the conference.

GIANT WHISKY MONOPOLY IN U. S. LOOMS

Bankers Seek Control Of Rum Production, Wet Leaders Hear

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Charges that a group of financiers are seeking a virtual monopoly of whisky production in the United States in anticipation of prohibition repeal may be laid before Attorney General Homer Cummings in the near future, it was revealed today.

The Attorney General would be asked to determine whether there is a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and also furnish information to Congress for regulatory legislation.

One holding company, it was learned on high authority, has obtained control of 55 per cent of the distillery capacity in the country. Recently one of the largest pre-prohibition distilleries, with one-fifth the nation's capacity, was added to the group.

The Congressional "wet" leaders studying the situation are considering legislation to allocate whisky production throughout the country as a means of preventing monopoly.

Another possible avenue of action, it was pointed out, would be the exercise by President Roosevelt of his licensing power under the National Recovery Act.

Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem.), of New York, a leader in the anti-prohibition fight in Congress, said:

"I am prepared to go before the Attorney General and demand action for violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law the minute it is justified."

MRS. KATHRYN O. M'CARTHY

MARRIAGE TOLD BY LEGISLATOR

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP.)—The duties of being a Congresswoman may even include announcing a marriage for a constituent.

Representative Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarthy, of Kansas, did it Thursday for Miss Victorine Browne, of Norton, Kan., who was off on a belated honeymoon with Dr. Charles T. Azzara, of this city.

University students here, they delayed making public their October nuptials until the school term was over.

Representative McCarthy and her husband, Daniel McCarthy, Kansas state legislator, left Washington yesterday for their home, planning to stop a week at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Their trip, too, is something of a belated honeymoon. They were married in February of this year. At first, he was too busy in the State Legislature for honeymooning, and then, she was too busy in Congress.

FUND CAMPAIGN FOR NEW BANK MAPPED

Wilkinsburg Leaders Prepare to Raise Sum of $146,000

A committee of Wilkinsburg business and club men today prepared to launch an intensive drive to raise funds with which to open the First National Bank at Wilkinsburg to succeed the restricted First National Bank of Wilkinsburg.

Government officials have refused permission for the old bank to reopen. Following a meeting with depositors early next week, present plans call for an intensive canvass of Wilkinsburg residents in an effort to obtain $146,000 to supplement the $104,000 share pledged by L. H. Gethoefer, chairman of the board of the old institution and president of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company.

COMMITTEE NAMED

The committee chosen to regiment forces for the effort—to be attempted through stock sales—includes Thomas W. Allen, chairman; J. D. Miller, Edward A. Jenkins, S. C. McConahey, E. H. Gerberding, W. H. Cheffey and J. C. McQuiston.

They were selected following a meeting attended by 18 representatives of civic organizations and members of bank committees.

Pans call for a new bank with $200,000 capital, $25,000 surplus and $25,000 undivided profits.

Subscriptions can be in either new cash or in the form of a lien on 50 per cent of the subscriber's deposit in the old bank.

U. S. MUST APPROVE

Half of all deposits would be freed under the new scheme, which was suggested, it is understood, in outline by federal officials. Their approval is necessary for reopening.

The First National Bank of Wilkinsburg and the Central National were consolidated in 1930, with the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, J. Hartwell Hillman, Jr., holding the dominant stock interest.

The institution failed to open after the bank holiday, following a slow withdrawal of more than $3,000,000 by 17,000 depositors over a two-year period.

Depreciation of bonds and of obligations held by the institution are said to account for its eventual decline.

ode of fair practices which would be satisfactory to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the ew act.

The company would not join he Coal Producers Association of Western Pennsylvania which was ttempting to complete a code for he district. The sudden change of front on the part of Pittsburgh oal came as a surprise to operaors yesterday.

Most coal men are puzzled as o the reason prompting Pittsburgh Coal to attempt to form an ntirely new organization in asuming the leadership for this district. While they expressed willingness to give full co-operation nd declared that the prospects or completing a suitable plan for his district were greatly improved y the company's action, a majority of coal men declared that he existing organization could attain the desired results.

J. D. A. Morrow, president of Pittsburgh Coal, stated that the ew organization would make it ossible for Western Pennsylvania roducers to show a united front or the first time. He declared hat this would be essential for he completion of a code as well s for the protection of the interests of this district in case of a onflict with the southern operators on the wage and working our questions.

Morrow explained the formaion of the new producers' organization by the fact that the existng association is too broad in the cope of its powers.

3,000,000 Back on Jobs Aim of Works Program

Half-Billion Already Alloted for Ships And Highways

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of articles on the aims, principles and operations of the momentous $3,300,000 Public Works-Industrial Control Act on which the administration is relying to accelerate economic recovery.)

By WILLIAM H. DOHERTY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The first phase of the Recovery Act, the $3,300,000 public works section, is an emergency proposition to be launched at once. It is designed to put at least 3,000,000 men back on payrolls.

Allotments already authorized include $400,000,000 for highways and $239,000,000 for the construction of 32 naval vessels.

This program, vast and unprecedented as it is, is only a toddling step compared with the giant strides to revolutionize business which will be taken by the industries control section of the act.

The works program is merely to relieve immediate distress. Sponsors are counting on having jobs in a revitalized industry to care for all these workers and more when that appropriation is exhausted.

The industries control plan provides for the enlistment of all manufacturers in codes of fair competition, to provide by mutual agreement to raise wages to a decent living standard and reduce hours of work.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the section, and a staff of aides are advising industrialists on tentative codes. They will be adopted after full public hearings on the views of all parties in interest—the manufacturers, workers and the buying public—and President Roosevelt gives his approval.

The major industries will be handled first, leading the way for the smaller groups. The first hearing scheduled is for the cotton textile industry, and a code providing 30 per cent wage increases and a 20 per cent reduction in working hours has received tacit approval of the Johnson board.

It is not necessary that all sections of the cotton textile industry agree to the plan. The President may even force codes on this or other industries which refuse to submit them of their own volition. The penalty provisions are six months in jail, a $500 fine or both, for those who violate the regulations.

The codes must contain provisions guaranteeing labor's right to bargain collectively, and freedom to join or not to join company unions.

Using the cotton code as an example, spinners and weavers will be required to furnish regular statements of the wages paid and the hours of work in their plants, their orders, stocks and production sheets.

LINDSAY RUNS FOR JUDGE

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay today announced as a candidate for nomination as Judge of Common Pleas Court. The announcement came as no surprise, it having been understood for months that he would seek one of the three places to be filled this year.

Mr. Lindsay enters the campaign with the indorsement of more than 750 members of the bar, among them many lawyers who would have supported Judge James R. Macfarlane had the latter not decided to retire.

Mr. Lindsay, who has been a practicing lawyer 24 years, ran for the bench two years ago. He finished ninth in a field of 24, receiving more than 100,000 votes. He managed the campaign of Judge James H. Gray in 1927.

As chairman of the Pennsylvania Conference on Election Laws he has been active in the promotion of legislation for protection of the ballot box.

INCOME DROPS AID SALES TAX

WASHINGTON, June 24. —(Universal.)—Forces planning to renew their battle for a general manufacturers' sales tax when Congress reconvenes, have been supplied with added ammunition by latest Treasury Department figures.

These figures showed conclusively the failure of the income tax to provide a broad revenue base for the Federal Treasury in lean times, when the national income wanes.

Despite increased rates and lowered exemptions, collections this month, including the quarterly June 15 installments, have totaled only $137,455,651, as against $154,957,791 under the lower rates and larger exemptions in the corresponding period last year.

June collections brought the total for the fiscal year to date to $737,060,500. This is 30 per cent less than collections for the same period last year.

On the other hand, the hit-and-miss sales taxes enacted at the last session of Congress, together with beer revenue, have totaled $831,862,655 for the fiscal year to date, compared with $489,099,963 from miscellaneous internal revenue collections last year.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that was centered over the Central Plains yesterday remained about stationary during the last 24 hours, but increased somewhat in intensity. Lowest pressure reported this morning is 29.74 inches at Wichita and Concordia, Kan. It is now causing a rather general thunderstorm condition over the Mississippi Valley, and eastward over the southern states to the coast. The rainfall was light except in a few localities. The pressure continues low over the Rocky Mountain states, and scattered showers have occurred over that section. Temperature changes were slight, but mostly towards rising over the Ohio Valley states and the Lake Region.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 1.0 feet; Lock No. 7, Monongahela, 11.4; Pittsburgh, 10.3; Dam No. 4, 9.2; No. 6, 7.8; No. 10, 8.7, and No. 12, 7.3. The dams are up.

CLOSED BANKS HOLD CITY CASH

City funds still tied up in closed or restricted banks total $1,468,000, according to a report by City Treasurer H. R. Hilliard to Mayor John S. Herron.

Through Hilliard's efforts, it was stated, the city since April 24 has collected $190,000 from six of the depositories. He pointed out that $1,079,196 of the funds still outstanding is in the Pennsylvania Trust Company.

The largest single item collected was $50,000 from the Keystone National Bank, Hilliard's report said. Others were $40,000 from the Diamond National Bank and $25,000 each from the Pennsylvania Trust Company, Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company, West End Savings and Trust Company, and the National Bank of America.

BEAUTY TICKET SELLERS HELD

Miss Marie Cooper, 39, 5237 Gertrude street, and Wilbur Freeman, 24, 222 Meyran avenue, were held for court today on misdemeanor charges growing out of the alleged sale of beauty certificates entitling the purchaser to a permanent wave for 25 cents. A third man, said to be an associate, was arrested at his office in the Simmons building. He gave his name as Joseph Devine, 23, also of Meyran avenue.

Freeman, according to police, represented the National Beauty Syndicate in the Simmons building, and, according to testimony sold the 25 cent certificates upon which the purchaser had to pay an additional $1.75. Miss Cooper, who police said, represented the Lady Fair Beauty Salon, 210 Hardy and Hayes building, also is alleged to have sold the certificates.

Carl Ingram, 42 Dewey street, Ingram, testifying against the beauty representatives, said his mother and two sisters had purchased the certificates. A representative of the Better Business Bureau also appeared at the hearing.

RAPS WALL ST. ON BANKS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 24.—(AP.)—Addressing a mass meeting of depositors in closed and restricted banks last night, Frank H. Schrenk, of Philadelphia, chairman of the National Depositors Committee, said a "big Wall Street bank" has succeeded the General Motors Corporation in the effort to establish a new bank in Detroit.

Schrenk said in part:

"The control of the banking facilities of Detroit will play a very important part in the control of the automobile industry in the future.

"Certain powerful Wall Street groups are very anxious to secure that control and when they were asked to aid the Detroit banks before they were closed they refused to do so because the closing of those banks fitted very nicely into their picture of control.

"I now charge to you that one large Wall street bank is now seeking to organize a new bank in Detroit."

'BIG STICK' SEEN IN COAL TANGLE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The government's big stick in the application of the National Recovery Act has been effective in hastening submission by hitherto recalcitrant elements in the bituminous coal industry.

Hurried action by Pittsburgh Coal Company officials in urging agreement of operators in the Pennsylvania field is regarded here as an effort toward compromise and to win consideration for their code in the national setup.

Conferences with Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of the recovery act, have convinced industrial representatives that he will stand for "no fooling."

Rectenwald May Quiz Men Who Fired Him

It's State Representative Joseph A. Rectenwald's turn now.

Fired from a county job because of alleged political differences with some of the County Commissioners, Rectenwald may call some of his erstwhile superiors to explain how they spend county money when the joint legislative committee opens its probe of governmental costs in Allegheny County, Tuesday.

A similar investigation was conducted last year under the leadership of State Senator James J. Coyne.

The committee will meet in the office of Representative William A. Walker, one of the members.

Roosevelt Nears Camp Ahead of Schedule

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

PULPIT HARBOR, Penobscot Bay, Me., June 24.—A change of some sort loomed today in President Roosevelt's plans for a slow vacation cruise up the New England coast in the schooner Amberjack II.

Whether by virtue of unusually favorable winds or premeditation on the part of the executive, he was far ahead of schedule. If he keeps up his sailing today as he has for the past several days, he will arrive at his destination, Campobello, his New Brunswick island camp, tonight or tomorrow.

Under plans announced at the outset of the trip, he was to sail into Campobello not earlier than next Friday.

Widespread rumors to the effect Mr. Roosevelt planned a dash to London to attend the World Economic Conference there were dissipated in an official statement issued by the President's secretary, Stephen T. Early. These rumors had been fed by the fact that the President was ahead of schedule on his trip north. Early's statement read in part:

"At no time has the President considered going to London and he sees no reason whatsoever to do so now."

PITTSBURGH GIRL TO COMPETE AGAINST ACE SPEED FLIERS

OPPOSES VETS IN ATTACK ON RECORD

Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols to Race Across U. S.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP.)—A Pittsburgh woman, Helen MacCloskey, yesterday announced her intention of going up against crack men fliers in the 50-mile speed feature race at the American air races here July 1.

Miss McCloskey, the only woman entered in the event, will pit her skill against such veterans as John Livingston, Aurora, Ill.; Jack Wright, Utica, N. Y.; Joe Jacobson, Kansas City; E. M. (Matty) Laird, Chicago, and Arthur J. Davis, Lansing, Mich.

Fliers in the race will attempt to break the world land plane record of 294 miles an hour.

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP.)—Before dawn July 1 at least two women fliers will lift heavily loaded airplanes off the long runway at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, in a scheduled nonstop flight of 2,600 miles to Los Angeles for several thousand dollars in prize money.

Competing against expert men fliers for the first time in the history of the Bendix trophy race, a feature of the national air meet here July 1-4, Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols—the only announced feminine contestants—will be given a four-hour start to compensate for the slower speed of their planes.

THRONGS JAM SCOTTSBORO MEETING

Ruby Bates, Girl in Case, Fails to Appear

Thousands of Negro and white persons, sympathizers with the principals in the now famous Scottsboro case, jammed Bethel Church, Wylie avenue and Elm street, last night to see and hear Ruby Bates, one of the central figures in the drama of the South.

But Ruby Bates failed to appear, although Lester Carter, a witness in the case, and Richard B. Moore, member of the national committee of the International Labor Defense, spoke. Temporary illness was given as the reason the woman did not arrive in the city.

Carter told his story—how he had been held 18 days after being taken off a freight train in Alabama. He said Ruby Bates had been on the car, when a stone fight began between Negro and white boys. Later, he said, Ruby came to him and told him she had signed something, she didn't know what.

From that time dated the case, in which nine Negro youths were held for attacking Victoria Price and Ruby Bates.

The meeting applauded President Roosevelt when a resolution was submitted asking that he use his power and that of Congress to enforce the constitutional guarantees to the Negro in the South, and have the case against the nine youths thrown out of court. James Egan presided.

VINCENT COLL'S WIDOW MUM ON KILLING

Held With Two Men On Holdup Charges; Gun Found

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Self-composed and quietly defiant, Lottie Coll, widow of Vincent Coll, gangster, was questioned in the police lineup today about four revolvers found in a midtown hotel room in which she and two men were arrested yesterday.

When Acting Inspector James F. McGrath started to ask her who killed her late husband with a machine gun in a public telephone booth about a year ago, she abruptly referred him to her lawyer.

Mrs. Coll and the two men were held on charges of violating the Sullivan anti-pistol law. Police said all three also had been identified as the persons who held up six Bronx drug stores since May 21.

ADMITS OWNING GUN

Police said Mrs. Coll admitted ownership of a foreign made revolver found in her handbag when she was arrested, but she and her companions denied knowing anything about three other weapons found in a suitcase.

None of them had anything to say about the positiveness with which drug clerks said "those are the fellows" and "that's the woman who said 'get those hands up, you mug,'" when they saw the three prisoners at a police station early today.

'SWEETHEART DEAD'

McGrath asked the widow when the three appeared on the platform:

"Which one is your sweetheart?"

She replied:

"Neither. My sweetheart is dead."

"Who killed him?"

"I don't know."

"Why don't you tell us and get it off your mind?"

"I'm sorry, I don't know who did it."

REFERRED TO LAWYER

Further inquiry was met with the suggestion that the inspector speak to her lawyer.

The two men arrested with her described themselves as Thomas Pace, 23, a painter, and Joseph Ventre, 23, a laborer.

Mrs. Coll gave her age as 25 but police said she was 31 years old. Her occupation, she said was housewife. In December 1931, as Dorothy Moran, she was sentenced to six months in the Women's House of Detention on a charge of possessing a revolver.

WOMAN, GIVEN 'LIFT,' ROBBED

Mrs. Anna Barnett, of 429 Semple street, said today she was robbed of $22 by an unknown motorist who offered to drive her to her home early today. Mrs. Barnett reported to police she was waiting for a street car at Fifth avenue and Chatham street when a man drove up and volunteered to take her home.

Instead of driving to Oakland, she said, he drove out Saw Mill Run boulevard, where she was robbed. The robber was armed, Mrs. Barnett said.

FRITZI SCHEFF'S HOME SAVED

WATERBURY, Conn., June 24.—(AP.)—Fritzi Scheff, one time musical comedy star, today had won the right in Superior Court to keep her summer home on Hitchcock Lake here at least until September 11.

Foreclosure action against the property has been instituted by the holder of a third mortgage, and the court originally set next Monday as the final day of redemption. Judge John Richard Booth, however, extended the time until the September date. The mortgage holder agreed to the extension.

Country Needs Good Citizens With Bad Habits

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Government revenue from beer is even bigger than our most optimistic reformers had feared.

Add that to the tobacco revenue and you discover that what this country needs is good citizens with bad habits.

Or better citizens with worse traits.

Both these commodities are luxuries. Nobody objects to paying an advance tax on fun. With the money pouring in it looks as if the reformers have got a terrific body blow in back of the ear.

WIFE ACCUSES 'OTHER WOMAN'

Having found another girl, her husband informed her he no longer cared for her, Nellie Kiley, of 304 Apple street, testified in asking Judge Frank P. Patterson to divorce her from Harold J. Kiley, 5248 Carnegie avenue.

They were married February 4, 1918, when Mrs. Kiley was 16, and separated February 28, 1932, after the latter heard of her husband's love for the other woman. They have a daughter 14.

Libels in divorce were filed by Margaret C. Bottom against Walter V. Bottom, Mary E. Watson against Aaron G. Watson, and Christ Burger against Lillian Burger.

Former Duquesne Priest Heads Holy Ghost Order

The Very Rev. Christopher J. Plunkett, whose first priestly station was Duquesne University in 1894, has been named Provincial of the American Province, Holy Ghost Fathers.

Official word from the Superior General in Paris, the Most Rev. Louis LeHunsec, was transmitted today to Duquesne University, where Father Plunkett has just completed the annual spiritual retreat. He arrived here last week from Arecibo, Porto Rico, where he headed a Holy Ghost Fathers' mission.

Father Plunkett was born in Ireland and educated at Blackrock College and the Royal University of Ireland. He also studied in Paris five years.

Father Plunkett was ordained in 1893 and became a member of the Holy Ghost Order in 1894. He was stationed at St. Peter Claver's, Philadelphia, after leaving Duquesne University. In 1912 he was appointed pastor of St. Mark's Church, New York.

In 1931 he was appointed head of the mission of Arecibo, Porto Rico, where he was assisted by Father Regis Guthrie, a Pittsburgher and graduate of Duquesne University, who was in Pittsburgh during the past week.

The Holy Ghost Fathers founded Duquesne University 55 years ago.

The Most Rev. Joseph Byrne, newly consecrated bishop of Kilima-ndjaro, Africa, was also in Pittsburgh yesterday.

INDICT WOMEN IN VOTE CASE

The federal grand jury probing election fraud charges will resume deliberations Monday morning. The probe is expected to extend into the Thirtieth Congressional District. With few exceptions, the witnesses so far have been from the Thirty-second District.

Before adjourning yesterday, two indictments were handed down naming 10 defendants, eight of them members of election boards in the Eighth and Tenth districts of the Fourth Ward. Two of the latter, Mrs. Alice Daschbach and Ruth F. McCarthy, were the first women indicted. Deputy United States marshals have a warrant for the arrest of an unidentified man indicted as "John Doe," who, according to the indictment, acted as a clerk on the Eighth District board.

Albert Diulius, judge of election in Tenth District, Fourth Ward, indicted last week for alleged intimidation of a government witness, was again indicted, with three other members of the board, for alleged falsification of records.

MDIVANI WIVES WIN RECEIVER

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP.)—Appointment of D. A. Russell as receiver for the oil properties of the Georgian princes, David and Serge Mdivani, pending the hearing of separation suits brought by their wives, Mae Murray and Mary McCormic, was confirmed yesterday by Superior Judge E. H. Wilson.

No objection was made by the princes, now in France. Neither the film actress, Miss Murray, nor Miss McCormic, the opera singer, were in court.

A restraining order obtained by Miss McCormic, enjoining her husband, Serge, from withdrawing funds from a Los Angeles bank was dismissed by Judge Wilson. An investigation revealed the money had been withdrawn before the injunction was issued.

DEFENSE BUSY IN TUB KILLING

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 24.—(AP.)—Defense plans to support David A. Lamson's plea of not guilty, which his attorneys said he will make to the charge of slaying his wife, went forward today pending the Stanford University Press representative's next appearance in court.

His plea will be entered next Friday, the date set in Superior Court yesterday after the murder information was read by Judge R. R. Syer.

E. O. Heinrich, defense criminologist, continued investigations of evidence at the home where Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson was found dead Memorial Day.

Rattlesnake 'Battle' Proves to Be Hoax

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—The rattlesnakes in the Bronx turned out today to be just another practical joke. The snakes were supposed to have given battle Thursday to several policemen and bystanders after being discovered in Paul Mosher's backyard.

But Dr. Raymond Ditmars of the Bronx Zoo made an examination and determined the reptiles had been dead since Wednesday. Mosher admitted the hoax.

Homewood Man Hurt When Hit by Auto

Gabriel Mastrononoco, 65, of 7521 Susquehanna street, was in Columbia Hospital today with injuries suffered late last night as he was crossing South Braddock avenue. Mastrononoco was struck by an automobile driven, according to police, by John W. Whitlaw, 36, of 132 River road, Whitaker.

Injured by Gun, Companion Held

While demonstrating a gun he was carrying to John Taylor, Negro, of 43 Fullerton street, it was accidentally discharged, Clayton Banby, 39, of 1323 Wylie avenue, held in connection with the shooting, told Center avenue police. Taylor, injured in the right leg, was taken to Passavant Hospital.

TRUCK CRASH HALTS INCLINE

Two emergency crews of the Pittsburgh Railways Company labored more than two hours early today to lift a loaded truck four feet to the top of the Pittsburgh incline, head of Arlington avenue.

The truck, owned by the P. H. Butler Company, ran over the edge of the plane platform and rested on the tracks. Engineer Harry Seible halted the plane, as it neared the top, averting a serious accident.

He said no blocks were under the wheels as a safety measure. These were supposed to have been placed when the plane began its ascent.

BENCH 'TENANT' KNIFED, 3 HELD

Two women and a man were held for further questioning in North Side Police Court today in connection with the stabbing of Harry Corrie, 27, of 610 Wettach street, during a quarrel over a bench in West Park.

Corrie was said to be in a serious condition in Allegheny General Hospital. Those held were his wife, Mrs. Anna Corrie, 22, William McFarland, 33, of 304 West North avenue, who received a slight stab wound in the side, and his wife, Mrs. Flora McFarland, 30.

All said the fight occurred when two other couples attempted to force them to give up a bench on which they were sitting. Police are searching for the other persons.

West View Boy, 12, Killed by Truck

Frank McCollum, 12, of 44 Wentworth street, West View, was killed late yesterday when he was struck by a truck driven, morgue attaches reported, by Orrie Zook, of Harmony, in Babcock boulevard. Zook was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office.

Woman, Caddy Die By Lightning Bolt

WILLIAMSBURG, Ky., June 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cora Stover, 45, of Columbus, O., and her caddy, Eugene Bird, 16, of Williamsburg, were killed by lightning on the golf links here yesterday afternoon.

KIDNAPING TRIAL NEARS JURY

BARNSTABLE, Mass., June 24.—(AP.)—The destinies of Kenneth and Cyril Buck, alleged kidnapers of Margaret (Peggy) McMath, may be decided by a Cape Cod jury before night.

The defense of Kenneth rested yesterday after Mrs. Bertha Buck, his mother, told the jury and judge that her son was a "good boy." The aged and feeble woman was a pathetic figure as she made her appeal for the man who admittedly took the 10-year-old girl from the Harwich Center School on May 2. The child was returned May 5, after $60,000 ransom had been paid. The ransom money was recovered in Kenneth's home.

Kenneth had charged that he acted under orders from a man identified as "Bill," of Hyannis. He said "Bill" told him that it was not a "real kidnaping" and that the father of the child, Neil C. McMath, "knew all about it."

Police Charge Man Stuffed Phone Slots

Walter Holland, 31, of Lowell, Mass., was arrested yesterday after he was alleged to have stuffed the return slots on telephone pay stations in a downtown department store.

Rubbish Fire Routs Six on North Side

Half a dozen residents of a rooming house at 914 Federal street were forced from their rooms early today by smoke from a $50 rubbish fire confined to the basement of the structure.

Glenshaw Child Hurt at Picnic

Donald McGarry, 6, of Beel street extension, Glenshaw, was in the St. Francis Hospital today suffering injuries as he fell down a 20-foot cliff at a picnic.

Wealthy Film Magnate Wins Florence Walton

PARIS, June 24.—(Universal.)—Florence Walton, famous American dancer and musical comedy star, who recently told friends here that if she were to marry again the man would have to be something "extra," has finally chosen him.

He is Pierre Colombier, wealthy motion picture magnate. The ceremony, it is learned from Miss Walton, will take place June 29 at Lardy, near Paris, in the chapel there.

The dancer's witnesses will be Prince Luis Ferdinand D'Orleans-Bourbon and infente of Spain and the prince's wife.

Miss Walton was formerly married to the French dancer, Maurice. She is well known here and is often in the company of such prominent social figures as Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

Only Miss Elsa Maxwell, of the American colony, is noted for parties which surpass those at which Miss Walton entertains.

Miss Walton's views on marriage are quite definite. She recently said:

"If I were born again, I should marry for love, like most American girls. We live, but we do not learn. Happiness depends on where you are born.

"Americans are so impulsive. They never seem to pause to think how serious marriage is. The French are different—it's all arranged."

'Poor' Old Man Bulges With $50,000 Hoard

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 24.—(AP.)—An old man munching half a loaf, his clothes in tatters, excited the kindly interest of civil guards at Dundalk yesterday and they took him to their barracks to treat him to a square meal.

One of the guards noticed a bulge in his shabby coat and asked him what he was carrying. To their astonishment he extracted $50,000 in bills.

The old man explained he had been his own banker throughout the American bank troubles and had returned to Ireland with his hoard after 46 years in the United States. He said the money was his life's savings and, although he had carried it for months in his pockets, he never had lost any.

When he returned to his old home in Dundalk he found the friends of his youth were dead. The civil guards assigned a special watchman to him. He refused to divulge his name, but said he was 76 years old.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS TO MARK 75TH ANNIVERSARY

CELEBRATIONS TO START ON WEDNESDAY

Hundreds of United Presbyterians from all corners of the globe will be in Pittsburgh next Wednesday for the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the United Presbyterian Church.

The celebration, to end July 2, will be in conjunction with the seventy-fifth General Assembly which will convene in the First Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street.

The Women's General Missionary Society will meet in the First Church, Union avenue, North Side, and the fortieth annual convention of the Young People's Christian Union will be held in Syria Mosque.

AT FOUNDING

Two men, said to remember attending the founding of the church in Pittsburgh 75 years ago, may be present at the anniversary services. Thomas E. Gillespie, 86, of 5226 Westinghouse place, was taken as a boy by his mother to the Thanksgiving service held in honor of the merger of the Associate and Associate Reformed Churches.

Mr. Gillespie said:

"Though I was only a boy of 11 at the time, I can remember how the members of the two churches marched on foot to the old City Hall. The Associate Reformed Church was on Diamond street in Allegheny and the Associate Church was on Seventh avenue in Pittsburgh.

"The Allegheny congregation marched across the bridge and at Liberty avenue met the members of the Pittsburgh church. Here the two processions joined and moved abreast up to the City Hall, a member of one church marching beside a member of the other church."

REMEMBERS MEETING

Seth F. Stewart, now a resident of California, remembers attending the business meeting and being lifted onto the platform by one of the enthusiastic group, it is said.

The Rev. John McNaughter, of the North Side, who is now in Europe, was said to have been a baby in arms at the time of coalition of the two churches.

The United Presbyterian Church now has about 1,000 congregations, from Boston to Los Angeles, and 180,000 communicants. Missions are located in Egypt, Punjab, the Egyptian Sudan and Abyssinia. Headquarters is in Pittsburgh.

The Story of Queen Esther -:- CHAPTER IX -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

At dinner when the King told Queen Esther he would grant her heart's desire, she demanded punishment of the man responsible for the death edict against the Jews, and pointed to Haman.

King Xerxes was angered and hurriedly walked out into the palace garden, and in his absence Haman threw himself on his knees before Queen Esther, who was reclining on a couch, begging for mercy.

Returning from the garden, the King entered the Queen's palace as suddenly as he had left it. Upon seeing Haman groveling on the couch where the Queen reposed, King Xerxes fell into a fury of jealousy and rage. He attacked Haman and dragged him from the Queen's palace. Haman then was thrown into prison by order of the King, who was enraged at Haman also for instigating the death edict against the Jews.

Underworld Crusader Speaks Here Tomorrow

Dr. W. H. Anderson Will Talk in Church On North Side

Dr. William H. Anderson, of New York, founder of the "Stop Alien Representation" movement, will speak in the First Christian Church, Arch street and Montgomery avenue, at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow.

The Rev. Ray E. Snodgrass said:

"Dr. Anderson has been one of the most persecuted men in America because of his aggressive crusading against the underworld in various states. He is the only man that ever whipped Tammany on a moral issue.

"He has been successful in getting a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States introduced in the National Congress."

Announcement comes of the marriage of the daughter of a Sewickley woman to a Wyoming man which took place on June 10.

Mrs. J. Frederick Haworth, of Sewickley, makes known the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Mary King Haworth McCready and Renzo Hamilton Lomax, of Dayton, Wyo., which took place in Dayton, with the Rev. J. Willis Hamblin officiating.

Church Scene Of Rodgers Wedding

At a pretty ceremony at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, Miss Jean Rodgers becomes the bride of James Ollie Clevenger, of Elmira, N. Y., with the Rev. Dr. John Franklin Troupe officiating. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Worthington Rodgers, of Franklin avenue, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. J. O. Clevenger, of Hendersonville, N. C.

The church is simply decorated with ferns and bamboo. The bride is wearing a classically simple gown of white satin having the sleeves puffed to the elbow; and her tulle and rose point veil cascades from a cap of lace finished with a band of seed pearls. She is carrying a sheaf of calla lilies.

Miss Eleanor Rodgers, as her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, is wearing verbena yellow organza having ruffled short sleeves, with a white organdy hat. Her bouquet is of white roses, gladioli and blue delphinium. Philip Clevenger, of Virginia Beach, Va., is his brother's best man. The bride's mother is wearing blue chiffon and lace, and the mother of the bridegroom is also here for the ceremony.

Miss Louise Deltz, violinist; Thomas Bell, tenor, and Miss Florence Roycroft, accompanist, will give a program preceding the ceremony.

After the reception and dinner in the Rodgers home, Mr. Clevenger and his bride will leave for Virginia Beach. They will make their home in Elmira.

Miss Mary E. Handlon Weds Alexander Maxwell

At 11:30 o'clock this morning Miss Mary E. Handlon, daughter of Mrs. W. H. Handlon, of Avondale place, became the bride of Alexander Maxwell, of Philadelphia.

The bride, who is a member of the faculty of Liberty School, wore a white satin afternoon frock with a white hat and carried orchids. Her only attendant was Miss Ida Nieman, and David Maxwell, of Philadelphia, was the best man.

Ingomar Community Club to Hold Bridge

A dessert bridge has been planned for Tuesday by the Women's Community Club of Ingomar as a benefit for its welfare and library work. The affair, which is to take place in Mrs. J. A. Miller's home, is in charge of the hostess and Mrs. Joseph Payne, Mrs. Martin Bauer, Mrs. William Sharp, Mrs. A. D. Johnson, Mrs. Howard Soergel and Mrs. Maud Trax.

News comes of the engagement of a deb of the past year, the first engagement in the group who bowed with her. She is Sallie Gibson, daughter of the junior John Gibsons, of Bennington avenue, who are announcing her betrothal to Franklin Farrel III, son of the junior Franklin Farrels, of New Haven, Conn.

Sallie is a graduate of the Oldfield School, Glencoe, Md., and of Sara Lyons College. Her fiance is a graduate of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and of Yale University.

Hours of Benefit

The whole town is in a state of great excitement, what with so many weddings of note going on, and plans for debut teas and benefits of next week.

Perhaps, like me, you've been wondering what the hours were for the many phases of that exciting benefit of benefits, the one the West Penn women's committee will give Wednesday.

Here they are: Bridge at 2:30; fashion shown 4:30 to 5:30 and 10 to 11 in the evening; dinner, 7 to 9; the beer garden, all through the event, and dancing, all evening.

Debutante Affairs

Tonight Mrs. Ralph S. Richards is giving a dinner at Allegheny Country Club for Collie Jennings, or Mary Colwell Jennings, to use the full name. Collie is a debutante of the past winter.

Monday afternoon Alexandra Mellon Grange, daughter of Mrs. George Sharpe Hasbrouck, Jr., and grand-daughter of James Ross Mellon, will make her debut in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and Tuesday afernoon Althea Robinson will bow to society at a tea at Franklin Farms, Sewickley Heights, the home of her parents, the William Christopher Robinsons.

Of course the most notable social event of today is the Madelaine Alexander-William A. Gordon III wedding, to take place this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the garden of Poplar Hill, the Sewickley Heights place of her parents, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander.

School Girls Invited To Missionary Meeting

College and high school girls are especially invited to attend the monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, to be held Wednesday morning in the First Church.

Miss Loretta Crawford, supervisor of the Girls' Primary School in Soochow, China, will speak, and Miss Dora Mason, director of kindergarten work in Egypt under the United Presbyterian Board, will lead the devotions. The Balladeers, a group of Avalon young people, will sing.

10 Girl Scout Camps to Be Opened

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Instead of two as in the last two years, Allegheny County Girl Scouts are to have 10 day-camps this summer, located so that scouts will not have to travel far from home for their camping.

There is to be a camp at Schenley Park, one at Highland Park, another in Frick Park, and others in Mt. Lebanon, on a farm near Tarentum, in the Boy Scout clearing at Wall, in Lewin Lane, on the Lewin Farm near Greensburg, the Boy Scout cabin in Ben Avon, on a farm near Crafton and the tenth in Renziehausen Park, this last and the Highland Park one opening the season on July 5.

The girls will camp one day a week at each of the 10 camps and will study nature lore, pioneering, trailing, mapping, outdoor cooking at those camps where there are cooking facilities, certain handcrafts and possibly dramatics, and dancing.

Each camp will be staffed by volunteer leaders from Scout headquarters.

P. T. A. Council Radio Talk on Fourth Safety

Sponsored by Pittsburgh Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, Miss Dorothy Hosford, of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, will talk on "Safety and Sanity" during the home forum period over KDKA on Monday at 2:35.

Miss Hosford's talk is one in the P. T. A. series on "Safeguarding the Child," and will deal with prevention of eye accidents on the Fourth of July.

Minister and Wife To Motor to Cape Cod

The Rev. and Mrs. Frank Orr Johnson, of Christ Episcopal Church, leave Monday by motor with their small granddaughter, Phyllis Johnson, for their cottage in Cape Cod. En route they will visit Mrs. Agnes Kendrick in Englewood, N. J.

Lida Baldrige Married to H. W. Tenney

At a double ring ceremony at noon today, Miss Lida Corey Baldrige, daughter of Carl C. Baldrige, of Edgewood, became the bride of Harry Willis Tenney, son of Mrs. Francis W. Tenney, of Leominster, Mass.

The bride wore an afternoon ensemble of blue and gray, and her sister, Miss Lucille Baldrige, as maid of honor, brown and yellow.

Douglas F. Miner was best man, and ushers included Lee B. Schmerber, Robert W. Baldrige, brother of the bride; C. Ray Baldrige, a cousin, and Clifton K. Harris.

A luncheon was given for the families and bridal party. After a lake trip they will be at home in Glasgow road, Bryn Mawr, Wilkinsburg.

Radio Row Rings Wedding Bells For 3 Brides

By AIRCASTER

Wedding bells ring today for Charlotte Shallenberger, WCAE soprano, and Frank G. Mulloy, station public relations director . . . Ditto for James F. Murray, WJAS publicity head, and Erma Renee Scott, of Wilkinsburg.

Yesterday, Adrian R. Cooper, who recently resigned his post at KQV to go to WFDF, Flint, Mich., was married to Nell Irene Hazlett, of Mt. Washington.

Pittsburgh won't get the new Whiteman shows at all. WCAE, New York, only, will carry the entire two hours—9:30 to 11:30 Mondays—with a New England network airing from 9:30 to 10:30.

That waltz song, "Remember," featured on WCAE's "Deeds, Not Words" program last week, was composed by Lester A. Lowman, of New Kensington. Alfred Bryan, of Logan's Ferry, scored the piano accompaniment.

What Price, Dempsey

The Carnera-Sharkey fight, at the present writing, will come too high for the networks . . . Jack Pearl's sponsor has definitely let it be known that he won't sponsor the scrap.

Jack Benny, Jimmy Melton, Margaret Livingston and the Black orchestra will return for the same sponsor the first week in October . . . and, by the way, did you hear that swell program Jack signed off with for the summer last night?

It was not many yesterdays ago that I read in a pillar of gossip that Tony Wons, on the verge of his vacation, was about fed up with radio and would retire and get away from it all—and write the inevitable book about the foibles of the kilocycle world.

And having read, I offered to wager two quid and sixpence that Wons would be back on the air before the equinox—and signed as a Columbia artist.

FEATHER-WEIGHT WOOL COATS ARE AN IMPORTANT ACCESSORY

WHETHER you're headed for the Century of Progress World Fair, a western ranch, resorts abroad, a week-end motor trip, or a jaunt to the mountains, casual coats are an indispensable acessory to take along with you. A good topcoat is a necessity on shipboard. If you're driving, a sudden shower or unexpected drop in the temperature must be provided for. If you're going to the Fair, remember that nights on the Lake Shore in Chicago are downright chilly. (And by the way, don't forget to pack low-heeled shoes for sightseeing there.)

THE COAT to the right is particularly smart for its length . . . it doesn't fall one inch below the knees! The check combines three colors recently pronounced fashionable together—grey and brown with white. The back flares, the collar buttons high at the throat, the pockets are large—the kind you want to shove your hands into and then go off on a brisk walk. Next to it, an entirely different sort of coat . . . all-white, unlined and tailored with definite dressmaker touches. It has that bulky, smart look. Wear it over the simple pastel spectator sports dresses everyone has a wholesale supply of. If you intend to alternate between city and country club, you might choose the amusing topcoat of bandanna stripes. The colors are lovely—two shades of green, blue, brown or maize, with white. A large button holds it together at one point, allowing it to flare sharply at the hem.

THIS YEAR it's a good idea to make up suits of skirts and jackets that seem to have slight relation to each other. All three of these coats would be smart with different skirts in contrasting colors or matching woolens, to alternate.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Little Billy was disgusted. One of the neighbors asked him to wheel her crying baby around the neighborhood. She promised him two bucks. Bill complied with alactrity.

Burying his pride at the thought of the $2, he performed his task and received only 25 cents. It developed that the lady had misunderstood the difference between "bits" and "bucks."

Billy was so mad he refused to surrender the child and gocart, and asserted:

"I'm not wheeling no bawling kid around for an hour, and have all the kids call me nursemaid for no two bits."

Then he let go the buggy and baby and all went sailing down the hill. No one was hurt.

Mrs. S. W. Weber, 3001 Pioneer avenue, tells the story on herself.

W. F. Wiesner, Homewood avenue, thought that he had pitched a new outdrop when the ball stopped in mid air, then fell suddenly to the ground. A dead sparrow alongside the horsehide explained it.

A letter from "Turk and the Lost Battalion," at the Master Civilian Camp, says that 20 of the boys from Pittsburgh will be coming home the thirtieth of this month.

"It's the "Lost Battalion," according to the boys, because "We're in the neck of some woods where no visitors ever visit us."

The Council of Jewish Women informs me that the North Park contingent is in need of bathing suits and trunks, to enable the boys to use the park pool. The pool offers the only bathing facilities.

Being a "Lost Battalion" may have certain advantages.

EXPERT TELLS OF INCREASING WEALTH

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

(No. 28 in a Series of Lessons in Economics.)

NEW YORK, June 24.—If we were to proceed on the basis of economic laws, instead of experimenting with idealistic and inflationary schemes, what would we do to increase the nation's wealth and welfare?

The scientific way to get the possible economic wellbeing is as follows: 1—Attain the maximum production of economic goods and services, considering costs. 2—Distribute the products among all producers as nearly as possible according to their respective productivities, first providing decent subsistence for all. 3—Induce people voluntarily to adopt ways of consumption which would give maximum satisfaction to each from the expenditure of his income.

In order to attain these general conditions of real prosperity, economics shows the following means:

A—The basis lies in production; therefore we must achieve the maximum output of desirable things in proportion to cost. How?

1—Provide the maximum stimulus to production by

b—Eliminating or redistributing unearned incomes, and keeping opportunities open. To this end, economists suggest the following means: Eliminate or regulate monopoly; eliminate corporate fraud and manipulation, eliminate "speculative" manipulation and gambling, carefully tax inheritances, carefully tax land rent.

2—Increase the efficiency of the factors of production. Begin by recognizing differences among men and instruments of production, and facilitating the shifting of the less efficient to lower-paid positions. Then facilitate and encourage "division of labor," both occupational and territorial. (Such things as vocational training, employment bureaus, and land classification are important here).

3—Encourage the formation of capital equipment by thrift, ample savings institutions and making investment safe.

4—Insure the most efficient use of all instruments of production. Here the great means is to preserve and perfect competition by eliminating monopoly and fraud, and by education and information concerning business conditions and cost of production. Artificial barriers to the free flow of labor and capital must be broken down. The aim is to let the economic law of balance work and to secure the most productive proportion among the factors of production.

5—Promote certainty and minimize risk by sound money and credit, and by full and true information.

B.—Along with maximum net production must go fair distribution of wealth and income. The general principle is to have rewards adjusted to productivity and to give all individuals a fair chance to develop their capacities. (See above, A, 1, (b) and A, 2.)

1.—Here economists emphasize the adjustment of population to natural resources. To this end, intelligent education as to marriage and birth control, and means to establish the highest possible standards of living, are desirable. Reasonable minimum wage laws, training to increase the percentage of those who have business ability and labor skill, are advocated. "Defectives" require special treatment.

C.—The way people "consume" should be guided by education, so that they will get the maximum utility. An important economic law is that we get such a maximum when we consume different things so that we equalize the intensity of our desires for each.

D—Minimum economic maladjustments. The big point here is to prevent "booms" and the overextension of credit, over-spending, and speculative excess, which always accompany. This can be done by scientific, non-political control of banking, credit, and security trading, backed by the steps suggested above under A, 4.

E—Provide wisely the appropriate place for the "public economy" and for participating of government in our economic life. (See lesson 22.) The government should not undertake the direction of business in which competition can work. It should regulate or manage "natural monopolies" and limited natural resources as well as carry on its usual function. It has a wide field in education. Much remains to be done in the way of scientific taxation. In general, government should facilitate and supplement the working of intelligent competition.

Above all, there is a crying need that our representatives and executives be selected on the basis of merit, and hold office on the basis of efficiency and social-mindedness. The millenium is distant under such "politics" as ours.

To attain prosperity, it is necessary only to follow economic laws. There is no way to do this so surely and effectively as to allow wherever possible the functioning of individual initiative, intelligent competition, and the voluntary co-operation of individuals through the exchange of their products in free markets. Any system of compulsory control, whether by a dictator or by the masses, must fail to give as good results, for the reasons which were given in discussing government functions and socialism.

STOCKS STEADY IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Stocks were steady in the early trading today. Trading was quiet.

Chrysler, National Distillers and General Motors were unchanged from previous closes, while fractional advances occurred in Celanese, New York Central, du Pont, Santa Fe, Dome, Case, American Can, United States Steel and American Telephone.

The financnal community lent an attentive ear to intimations from Washington that the administration was disposed to allow plenty of time to test thoroughly the domestic program adopted at the last session of Congress before making any commitments about tariffs or stabilization. It is naturally impossible to forecast just how much time is to be allocated for this purpose, but Wall street will follow the development closely.

In the meantime the domestic industrial picture continued favorable. There are indications that representatives of the oil industry are seeing eye to eye with respect to the adoption of a code of fair practices, and although many controversial points still have to be worked out, it is believed that negotiations will be successfully consummated in the near future.

Mercantile trade reviews reported that business during the past week showed further improvement with manufacturing operations generally above the corresponding week a year ago.

Foreign exchanges showed little change from yesterday. Sterling opened unchanged at $4.22¼, while French francs stood at 4.89 cents, an advance of 1 point.

AUTO OUTLOOK BRIGHTENING

DETROIT, June 24.—The motor picture, which has been brightening with each succeeding week, currently looks better than at any time in recent years, says the Wall Street Journal. The retail sales trend continues upward; demand is spreading to higher-priced cars; with higher prices ruling; field stocks of both new and used cars are small, and indications point to an active summer trade.

For the first time in years, the motor industry is faced with a manufacturing problem rather than one of sales. Some of the leading companies are finding difficulty keeping pace with demand. Several companies already have covered their June schedules and orders now coming in are being booked for July delivery.

GRAINS MAKE NEW HIGHS

CHICAGO, June 24.—Wheat, corn and oats all rose early today to new record peak prices.

Leading traders said irreparable crop damage to date warranted higher quotations. Opening unchanged to ⅞ higher, wheat afterward showed all around upturns. Corn started at ½ decline to ½ advance, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Lumber Business Holds New Gains

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(Universal.)—New business received at lumber mills during the week ended June 17, while 3 per cent less than in the preceding week, was otherwise largest in volume since December, 1930, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association reports. Production was the heaviest since October, 1931, while shipments, except for the preceding week, were the largest since September, 1931.

Total orders were 252,482,000 feet; shipments, 208,842,000 feet, and production, 174,707,000 feet.

'Frisco Rail Order Involves 4,300 Tons

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—(AP.)—The St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad has ordered 4300 tons of 110-pound rails for replacements in the Southwestern and Southern Divisions which include, Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida it was announced today. The rails were ordered from the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, a U. S. Steel subsidiary.

France Puts Ban On Wheat Imports

PARIS, June 24.—The Chamber of Deputies has approved a wheat subsidy plan which provides that foreign wheat imports into France are forbidden even under the present temporary administration plan which is abolished. A bonus of about $1 a bushel is granted French wheat exporters. The legal price of wheat in France is fixed at 115 francs a quintal.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

The Lonely Heart

I, to me, am all that matters now—
Released from the demand of your embrace,
Denied the faintest echo of your vow—
My solitary spirit must efface
The cruel scar of memory's subtle blast;
Must grow in courage as the nights and days
Accrue the debt the present owes the past,
Filling the hours in trifling, devious ways.

Unused am I to lonely thorofare
Gaping wide and certain in its route
Having preferred, when preference was my share
The random path in casual pursuit

And like the caged-in bird allowed the tree
I wonder what one does—when one is free.
—Martha Lee Lorenz.

The honeymoon is over, says Jules Levine, when he happens to come home just as she's saying at the phone: "I can't talk now—he's just come in, g'by."

Form of Criticism

The star of a show passed two of the chorines in it on the street without giving them even a nod.

"Huh! The nerve of that guy," said the first, "high-hatting us."

"Don't be so hasty," condoned the other, "how do you know he hasn't got strained eyes?"

"Well, if he has," replied the first, "it's from reading his own notices."

The honeymoon is over, adds Ide Gruber, when he starts telling her that so far as he can see, the beauty parlor has gypped her.

Pride

Chico Marx would have you believe that he was stopped by a panhandler to whom he handed two bits, but couldn't get rid of him.

"The way you act," persisted the mendicant, "I can tell you think I'm an ordinary bum. Well, I'm not!"

"Okay," begged off Chico, "I gotta go to Africa."

"Never mind that stuff," tagged along the fellow, "I want you to know that I ain't even a depression bum. I was a bum in good times!"

$ucce$$ Story

His name is Gale Mogul. He gets $40 per week at the United Artists studios to "stand in" for stars. "Standing in" meanizg to pose on the spot while the lights burn you up (so the stars can keep cool and sit down), while the photographers get the right focus.

Mogul, a personable guy, is liked by everybody on the lot. He invested his tiny savings in a beer garden across the way. So popular is he that the stars and almost-stars, bit players and extras all helped him build his beer place—actually driving in nails, etc.

He still makes $40 a week "standing in." Which he spends freely. And little wonder. His profits every week from his beer Garden of Eden range from 11 to 15—hundred dollars!

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Similes suggested for the Best Book of them by Mitchell & Durant: . . . Sincere as the praise of a stooge . . . Silly as a debutante with an ear trumpet . . . Dignified as an Englishman finding his wife in the arms of his best friend . . . As cordial as a music publisher to an orchestra leader no longer on the air.

New Game

Credit Lou Holtz with a new type of short-short story. It musn't be over 12 words long. Send yours. Holtz calls them "Dozen Matter." Here are samples:

An old man forgets to remove cotton from ears during a proposal.

A bride yawns during her wedding and her false teeth fall out.

Pest

Sid Parry knows a guy who sneaks up on you like the interest on a hock ticket.

This College Is Full of Humor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

With Bing Crosby as the prof. of dramatic art and Jack Oakie as the star student in every branch of the higher and lower learning, the picture at the Penn lives up to its title of "College Humor," though the humor is fastest when George Burns and Gracie Allen are dispensing it along with ham sandwiches and broiled "snobs." Gracie has heard about "squabs," but knows they are the wives of Indian chiefs.

Mr. Seibel

Bing Crosby teaches his class in drammer to croon, and he teaches by example. Several of his songs have catchy tunes, and are staged very amusingly. They raise this college picture almost to the level of musical comedy. There are other times when it reminds you of all the college dramas and comedies you have ever seen.

Some day a very original dramatist will put on a college picture or play in which somebody studies between proms and football matches. In "College Humor" that almost happens, but Jack Oakie as the college dumbbell does all the studying. His sister, played by the blandishing Mary Carlisle, does most of the love-making, which is another popular course at Midwest. Mary Kornman, a blonde of the less intellectual type, exhibits a morbid craving for a ham sandwich. Burns and Allen have so little to do in the film that they should have provided her with one, being caterers in this college.

Richard Arlen is there, too, as a star footballist, who has the stellar weakness for strong drink and gets himself expelled just when he is needed for the big game. Well, the game is won anyway—it is never lost—and everybody is tolerably happy. Even Charley Chase gets his share of joy in a comic film in which he enlists in the French Foreign Legion and finds a sheik susceptible to rhythm, who brings his harem to an American carnival show.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of the World Economic Conference in London are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. There are views of the delegates from 66 countries. Premier Ramsey MacDonald makes a plea for united action on the recovery of world trade. The Globe Trotter describes the scenes.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, skipper of the schooner Amberjack, as well as President of the United States, is shown at the helm as the tiny craft approaches Gloucester, Mass. The skipper had just guided the schooner through a terrific nor'western just as capably as he seems to be guiding the nation through its troubled waves. Capt. Ben Pine, skipper of the champion schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, conquerer of the Canadian Blue Nose, presents the President with an oil painting of his ship.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the $3,300,000,000 recovery fund, explains the vast plan. He lays special stress on the President's appeal to employers to keep up standard wage and thereby help to bring back normal times.

William Hamm, Jr. kidnaped millionaire brewer of St. Paul, Minn., is seen and heard as he is returned to his home.

Ex-Premier Venizelos, of Greece, is shown examining his car in which he was riding when assassins tried to kill him.

Tarpon have never been so plentiful off Port Aransas, Texas, as they are this season. Scenes show hundreds of the big fellows being captured.

Pictures show the opening of the racing season in Tokio. A colorful spot is the special stand reserved for Geisha girls.

Vacation time has started on the "dude ranches" of the West, visitors getting a strenuous initiation into life in the raw.

Harvard Class Day exercises end with the annual confetti battle in the big stadium in Cambridge.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

U. S. Amends Ban To Aid Blind Vendors

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The rigid rule against selling articles in federal buildings has been amended just enough to permit blind persons to dispose of pencils and newspapers.

This was the result of an appeal to President Roosevelt by societies interested in assisting the blind.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Harvard decorated Al Smith. Glad to see 'em recognizing achievement instead of just vocabulary. Champion fliers from all over the world are gathering in here. The Olympic games of the air start here July first to fourth. You will see every known land plane record broken. This is the national air races, the one official meet of the year. There is a German coming that can do more crazy things in the air than Hitler can on the ground. Then Mussolini is sending his crack fliers. Remember, it's one international gathering that gets somewhere.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Ayres, Gaynor Teamed

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 24.—As Lew Ayres enjoys his Eastern vacation, jobs keep piling up for him in Hollywood. The young star, who banked a $50,000 trust fund before he left for New York, is signing at a handsome salary to play opposite Janet Gaynor in "The House of Connelly."

It will be their second appearance together, their first, in "State Fair," having drawn favorable comment from exhibitors all over the country.

In their new picture Janet plays the daughter of a tenant family on a run-to-seed Southern plantation, and Lew the young aristocrat, whose people have owned the land for generations.

As a Broadway play "The House of Connelly" won a selection among the 10 best of the year. It was written by Paul Green, who now is under contract to Fox. Edwin Burke will adapt it for the screen.

And here's a romance bulletin: Ginger Rogers and Lew Ayres are not going to get married—at least close friends deny it.

Out at Gary Cooper's ranch home, they were talking about famous gamblers and tense moments over the tables. Gary recalled an all-night poker game between some cow-punchers back in Montana.

Came a round towards morning when the chips piled high. One after another the players dropped out. Finally, the bet was called and a grizzled range-rider laid out four aces. His opponent looked at them, drawled:

"Well, pardner, that wins the pot all right, but it ain't the hand I dealt you."

Firemen at Expo Drench Wild West Show

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP.)—To the World's Fair grounds firemen a fire is a fire and nothing else.

When the actors in a wild west show, depicting an Indian attack on a covered wagon, set fire to the top of the vehicle, the firemen promptly put out the blaze.

The Indians were drenched.

GRETA MEYER, SYLVIA SIDNEY AND GILDA STORM IN A DOMESTIC SCENE IN FILM, "JENNIE GERHARDT"

Grand Acting On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Your liking for "Jennie Gerhardt," screen treatment of the Theodore Dreiser novel, on view in the Stanley, will depend upon your reaction to its basic idea that nothing much matters when you are truly in love—defiance of friends, relatives, conventions and respectability. Another way to put it is to state that if you liked "Back Street" you will like "Jennie Gerhardt," and if you had a dislike for the former, you will find nothing to admire, insofar as story is concerned, in the Stanley feature. However dissimilar they may have been, as written, respectively, by Fannie Hurst and Mr. Dreiser, they are quite similar as photoplays.

Like most long novels, "Jennie Gerhardt" on the screen is slow in movement and long on dialogue, but it is a swell job of acting on the part of Sylvia Sidney, who, in this picture portrays her second Dreiser character, the other having been the unfortunate young woman in "An American Tragedy." She is a poor girl, befriended by a senator, who is killed while on his way to keep a promise to marry her. So Jennie, an unmarried mother, becomes a maid in the home of a rich family. There the son falls deeply in love with her, a love that continues throughout his life, although she leaves him so he may marry another of his own station, but his last earthly pledge is his undying love for her.

That, in brief, is the story of the photoplay, pictured with much detail that is not always deeply interesting.

Miss Sidney, by her acting, proves that she is the Lillian Gish of the present era of films, and that is no small praise.

Donald Cook, who gives almost, but not quite all, for the love of her, also is convincingly sincere. Others prominent include Edward Arnold, Mary Astor and H. B. Warner.

Strange Tales In Davis

By FLORENCE KLEIN

"It's Great to Be Alive," lives up to it's name as a picture. This was revealed yesterday in the Davis and Sheridan Square, with Raul Roulien, Gloria Stuart, Edna May Oliver and Herbert Mundin in the leading roles.

Raul is seen as an ardent admirer of Miss Stuart. He has a few other lady friends, but he tries to keep that a secret from Miss Stuart. He is unsuccessful and a quarrel is the result. He decides to fly the Pacific Ocean. His plane is forced down in mid-ocean and he is given up as lost. An epidemic sweeps the earth of all the men, and women are in their glory, ruling the world. An airplane finds the lost flier on a desert island, where he has been for seven years. Brought back to the United States, he is claimed by many nations.

The other feature, "Supernatural," has Carole Lombard, Randolph Scott, Vivienne Osborne and H. B. Warner in principal roles. It is weird and mysterious, involving restoration of life after electocution, a murder, communication with the dead and other eerie factors.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Lady Who Means Well

ON THE day that Johnny married Joan, both kids should have been the happiest mortals in the world. They were daffy about each other, and all that sort of thing. The skies were blue, the birdies were singing and—well, everything should have been hotsy-totsy. But it wasn't.

It was Joan's mother who caused the unhappiness on their wedding day. Not that she meant to, you understand. No, indeed. The old girl's intentions were of the best. That was the whole trouble.

Joan, you see, was an only child. And while Mamma wasn't particularly anxious to have her daughter married—even to so nice a boy as Johnny—she still felt she should have charge of the wedding plans.

The girl and the boy had hit the sensible plan of running off and getting married very quietly. They didn't want any phony friends and still phonier relatives sitting around while the knot was tied. But Mamma threw up her hands in holy horror.

"What?" she cried. "My daughter wants to run away to get married? I won't permit it. You'll have a regular ceremony and everyone will be invited. If you must get married and leave me (large tears here) you might at least do it right."

And so two kids, half scared to death, marched up the center aisle while the preacher waited, and hundreds of relatives craned their necks and simpered at the redness of Johnny's face and the whiteness of Joan's.

And Mamma was very proud. Because she meant so well. . . .

For two years after that Johnny and Joan lived happily in a little flat. By day Joan argued with the furniture installment collector. By night Johnny argued with the landlord. In between times, to keep in practice, they argued between themselves.

Their arguments were always on the same subject. Mamma. Mamma. Mamma. Johnny would come home, radiant with happiness.

"Darling," he would say. "Guess what? I got a two-buck raise today. You know what that means, don't you? It means that we're going to a movie tonight. It means that we're gonna celebrate."

Joan's face would light up for a moment. Then it would fade.

"Johnny," she would say, "I'm tickled to death about that raise. I knew that the boss would appreciate your talent sooner or later. But listen, honey, I can't go to a movie with you tonight. We'll have to make it some other night. Mamma's gonna buy a hat tonight. And—well, she asked me to go with her. I can't turn her down now."

That would start it. In a few moments, Johnny would be saying things he later regretted. Joan would be crying. And Mamma would be sitting in the parlor of her home, waiting—and meaning so well.

As I said before, they were happy for two years. And they were, when they weren't fighting about Mamma. But after two years the depression sneaked up behind our hero when he wasn't looking, and stuck a blue slip in his pay envelope.

Johnny tried hard to get a job. He did everything possible. But there just weren't any jobs to be had. And in the end, Johnny and Joan put their furniture in storage, stayed to look at the bare walls which had meant so much before, and departed for Mamma's house.

Mamma did her best to make Johnny feel at home. She told him, when he arrived, that the place was his. In fact she kissed him. She said that she would accept no money from them until Johnny got a job, and that the two kids had nothing in the world to worry about.

Time passes slowly. But not in a column. Six months have elapsed between this paragraph and the one preceding it. Johnny is still jobless. He is discouraged. Downhearted. Sunk.

But not Mamma. Mamma is happy. Very happy. Instead of being alone, she now has her darling daughter around all the time. And at night, if Mamma wants Joan to go shopping with her, or to a movie, she knows that no argument will result between the love birds. For Johnny is now so indebted to Mamma that he can't say anything about it.

During the day, Johnny goes out to look for a job. If he comes home before five, Mamma whispers to Joan that she'd bet that Johnny didn't look for a job at all. She'd bet that he went to a movie instead. Ask him.

And at night, sometimes, Mamma had nervous spells. She would tiptoe to her daughter's room, and knock.

"Joan, darling," she would say, "I'm awfully sick. I'm afraid I'm going to do something desperate. Would you mind coming in to sleep with mother for awhile? It will make me feel so much better. Johnny won't mind, will you, Johnny?"

The two kids would sit up in bed, look at each other helplessly, and groan softly. "All right," Johnny would mutter. "Go ahead. Go in with the old hen. Go ahead. I don't matter at all. Go ahead."

Then Joan would mutter, "Don't you call her a hen, you cheap bully. If my mother is sick, my place is at her side. After all, I'm her daughter. Johnny, your selfishness sometimes makes me sick." . . .

One day it got a little beyond Johnny's nerves. The kid forgot himself for once.

"Joan," he said quietly. "I'm going to leave here. I can't stand that woman any more. She's got me half crazy.

"I'm going, and I want you, as my wife, to come with me. I've got a friend in Brooklyn who'll take care of us until I get a job. Now it's either me or your mother. Who's your choice?"

Joan thought for a moment. It was mean of Johnny to put it this way. Mean, and selfish. He had no right—

"Listen," she said. "You're my husband, and I love you. She's my mother, and I love her. There's no choice at all. If you want to leave, after all she's done for you, that's your business. I'm staying" . . .

Johnny left. He would have given his life to be able to take his words back again, but it was too late. Joan would have given plenty to have him back again, but why should she stoop when he was in the wrong?

Johnny waited for Joan. Joan waited for Johnny. Each one loved the other madly. But they never met again, until recently, in a court of divorce. And then they sat on opposite sides of the great room and listened to a judge, who looked coolly from one to the other and then divorced them.

Joan cried on the way out of court. Johnny didn't. He couldn't. There was a lump in his throat as big as an apple.

As they waited for a taxi, Mamma took out her handkerchief and brushed a tear aside. Then she turned to Joan.

"Did you see how coldly he sat there?" she moaned. "After me treating him as though he were my own son, he looked as though he blamed me for everything. And I meant so well!"

Daring Young Women In Kennywood Act

A "slide for life" 600 feet to earth is the thrill act to open in Kennywood tomorrow. Billed as Four Queens of the Air, girls perform atop 110-foot ladders. In the "slide for life," Miss Florence hangs by her teeth to a devise attached to a wire and drops. The Four Queens, in their teens, are said to be the only girls who ever attempted a performance of this kind without male assistance. They will show twice daily at Kennywood, free, during the coming fortnight.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Downfall of Canzoneri. | Grimm Counts Bucs Out.
Career Credit to Game. | Vet Sees 65 Belmonts.
Tough Year for Leaders. | Negro Sprinters Rule.

ROSS LOOKS LIKE WORTHY CHAMPION

ONE OF THE worthiest champions the fight game has known stepped down in favor of a successor who looks equally worthy when Tony Canzoneri surrendered the world lightweight title to Barney Ross on a decision last night in their 10-round bout at Chicago. While the verdict came in for the usual booing, the result was not a great surprise to the rank and file of ring followers. Canzoneri, in view of the beating he took from Wes Ramey a couple of months ago, had appeared to be going, the toll of Queensberry wear and tear though only 27. Ross, on the other hand, not yet 24, clearly was coming and possessed all the qualifications of a champion. It was just a repetition of an age-old story in the fight game.

Barney Ross

The ring has known no greater champions than was Canzoneri, none that was more of a credit. He held three different titles during his career—featherweight, lightweight and junior welterweight. He dodged no challenger. He fought everybody, and even when clearly near the brink as lightweight king he readily consented to risk his title against his most formidable challenger in the latter's home town.

Ross looks like a real champion, with skill, speed and hitting power. The Jewish fighter, who will not be 24 until December 23, lost only one decision in 150 bouts as an amateur. Fighting professionally since 1929, he has been defeated only by Carlos Garcia in 1930 and by Roger Bernard in 1931. Pittsburghers witnessed an exhibition of his class at Motor Square Garden several months ago. Ross is a worthy title holder in abality. To act the part of a real champion he could have no better model than the man he defeated.

THE NEW CHAMPION is the sixth in the lightweight class since Benny Leonard retired undefeated in 1925. Jimmy Goodrich, Rocky Kansas, Sammy Mandell and Al Singer made up the line preceding Canzoneri. The last named had held the title since November 14, 1930, when he knocked out Singer in the first round. Tony had reigned longer than any other present champion except Al Brown in the bantamweight class. Ross is not the youngest in the lot named to win the 135-pound crown. Singer won it before he was 23.

It's a tough year for fistic rulers and favorites. Jackie Fields lost the welter diadem to Young Corbett III and the latter lost it to Jimmy McLarnin. Ben Jeby beat a strong favorite in Frankie Battaglia to win the New York version of the middleweight honors. Max Baer pulled a greater surprise by stopping Max Schmeling in a near-title bout among the heavies. Midget Wolgast, flyweight leader, was booed out of Detroit for refusing to fight a southpaw. Jack Sharkey will be the next to face the jinx.

THE ACTION OF the Cubs in recalling Vince Barton from Albany and placing him with Newark lends color to the story that Chicago will purchase Jim Weaver, giant right-hand pitcher, from Newark.

Gabby Hartnett reported favorably on Weaver after looking him over. The big boy was up before with the Senators and Yankees, but never looked quite so good as he has looked this year.

THE DEVELOPMENT MAKING Hank Leiber a part of the deal whereby Brooklyn obtained Outfielder Joe Hutcheson from Memphis came as a belated confirmation of fandom's opinion that the Dodgers had received something besides Sam Leslie from the Giants in exchange for Watson Clark and Lefty O'Doul. Instead of the cash suspected, a Giant option on Leiber in Jersey City was transferred to Brooklyn, and Leiber then was shifted from Jersey City to Memphis. Just why the fact that Leiber had been involved in the Giant-Dodger trade was not announced in the first place is not clear. It serves to make the deal look a little less one-sided than it appeared. Leiber is considered unripe for major league service at present, but he is Dodger property and will play a part in Brooklyn's reconstruction plans for next spring. The Dodgers' purchase of Outfielder Len Koenecke, another former Giant, from Buffalo for September delivery, was independent of the Leslie deal.

Charley Grimm

IN THE OPINION of Charley Grimm, the National League is going to have the hottest race it has known since 1908, when the Cubs, Pirates and Giants were almost abreast at the finish. But he adds that this time the Cardinals instead of the Pirates are likely to be among the first three.

Grimm says that Pittsburgh has looked none too good against the Cubs and is the one club against which his men have been able to make a lot of runs. However, in painting the Pirates as inferior to the Bruins, Charley does not offer the standing of the clubs as supporting evidence.

ASKED TO NAME the most improved player in the National League this year as compared with the form shown in 1932, Grimm said he would have to split the distinction between Frankie Frisch and Leo Durocher, of the Cardinals.

According to the Cub manager, Frisch is playing the kind of ball he played in his best days with the Giants, dashing out to center field after fly balls and getting everything in his neighborhood.

BOXING MEN IN New York are not so sure after all that Bill Carey is out of the Madison Square Garden picture. They now think that the future will show Carey still hanging on, and that the man to go instead will be Jimmy Johnston, director of fistic affairs for the corporation. It is even predicted that Johnston will not serve out the full term of his contract. While that agreement will not expire until October, the report now is that Johnston will be dropped as soon as the Sharkey-Carnera fight is over.

THE OTHER OLD boys who claim records for having attended some big annual sports event through a long stretch of years without a miss appear to be distanced by Walter S. Vosburgh, metropolitan horseracing handicaper. He has witnessed every one of the 65 runnings of the Belmont Stakes.

As a boy, Vosburgh saw the first Belmont run at Jerome Park in 1867, and he has been on hand for every renewal. It has been run annually except for a two-year interruption in 1911-12.

WHEN JESSE OWENS, sensational schoolboy sprinter, got back to Cleveland from the Chicago meet, he was given the reception of a conquering hero. A parade, newspaper interviews and photographs, radio talks and personal greeting by the Mayor at City Hall, took up the first part of the day, and then Owens attended his first boxing show at Public Hall, where, on being introduced from the ring, he received more applause than all the boxers combined.

Jesse Owens

Jesse was offered a playground job for the summer by Mayor Ray Miller, but asked permission to withhold his decision for a few days until he could learn if such a position would affect his amateur standing. The East Tech marvel will make his next appearance in competition tomorrow afternoon at a district A. A. U. meet in Cleveland.

THE RISE OF Owens draws attention again to the fact that in its remarkable athletic advance in recent years the Negro race has stood out even more prominently in the running game than in any other department. On the retirement of Eddie Tolan, double victor in the Olympic sprints, there stepped into his shoes Ralph Metcalfe to equal the world record at 100 yards and set up a new mark at 220. Now comes Owens to equal the record for the century and to approach the 220 figures while still in high school, suggesting world-beating possibilities when he is older. In addition, there are Willis Ward, not only a great sprinter, but a decathlon star at Michigan; Jimmy Johnson, another streak from a little farther West, and several additional speedsters of uncommon ability in other parts of the country. Negro sprinters clearly dominate the cinder path right now.

HOW TO KEEP COOL PLAYING FOOTBALL IN THE SUMMER TIME . . . IF YOU MUST PLAY FOOTBALL IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME, WHEN THE THERMOMETER'S UP

As you can see from this International News Photograph Service picture of Charley Davis, former Notre Dame football player, summer football isn't so hard to take, if you're properly dressed. And when the tackling is done by your teammates, who are laughing night club girls. Davis is a musician in a Broadway orchestra. Football never was like this at good old Alma Mater.

LOSS OF TITLE PROTESTED BY CANZONERI

CHICAGO, June 24.—(INS.)—Tony Canzoneri wasn't at all pleased today with the decision which switched the lightweight championship crown from his brow to that of Barney Ross at the Stadium here last night.

Expressing his disapproval, Canzoneri said:

"The decision was the surprise of my career, and I have had many of them. Honestly, I thought I was so far ahead of Ross that I coasted slightly in the eighth and nine round and didn't extend myself in the tenth."

Sammy Goldman, his manager, said:

"The decision was an outrage. I knew it would be sour when the judges hesitated several minutes before announcing their decision."

"I WON"—ROSS

But Ross, the new champion, had this to say:

"I beat Tony. He was a great champion, and I hope to be a great one, too. He can have a return match any time he wants it."

Referee Tommy Gilmore, himself a former boxer said: "I called it a draw because Ross' margin was so slight. I think a challenger should win so decisively that there is no question when a championship is at stake."

Packey McFarland, member of the Illinois State Athletic Commission and one of the greatest lightweights of all time: "The decision was right. Ross won by a good margin."

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A CHICKEN HOSTELRY—The Fritz Hotel, one of Miami's outstanding tourist hostelries, only 50 per cent completed when the realty boom ceased, has been converted into a modern poultry plant for the commercial production of fresh table eggs on a wholesale basis. The birds are kept in a battery system of units, approximately 36 inches wide, 68 inches high and 150 feet long, and are confined in individual cages, which are 17 inches square with feed hoppers and a fresh water supply in front of each cage. The plant has a capacity for providing accommodations for 60,000 laying hens, besides 50,000 baby chicks for annually replenishing the laying flock. TOMORROW—WHAT S O S MEANS.

CUCCINELLO'S HOMER BEATS BUCS, 5-4

BROOKLYN, June 24.—The prospect of signing Catcher Val Picinich, a major-league star of many campaigns, buoyed up the spirits of the Pirates today. The veteran maskman, who is a free agent, went into negotiations with Manager George Gibson, of the Pittsburgh club, shortly after Earl Grace had reported a recurrence of the leg injury which recently took him out of the Pittsburgh lineup.

Grace has an infection of the left eye. He probably will submit to an operation that will keep him out of action for three weeks. The catcher is in a local hospital. Provided Picinich is signed Grace will be placed on the temporarily retired list.

That a big part of the in-and-out weakness of the Pirate machine is due to the absence of an old-timer in the catching division is the contention of more than one close observer. It is not a disparagement of Grace, Hal Finney and Tommy Padden to state that Picinich has a superior knowledge of the important role behind the plate.

CONDITION FACTOR

In any event, the veteran receiver may be signed today. Val already has worked out with the Buccos at the request of Manager Gibson, who wants to be sure that he does not take on anybody who is out of condition. Then, too, there is the important question of finances—Picinich being a free agent, he is likely to ask for a generous sum before he will sign.

Picinich is aged 36, but apparently he is in good condition as he recently had a connection with the Jersey City club. The Dodg-

SEMI-FINALS ON IN WEST PENN NET TOURNEY

TITLE BATTLES ON CARD FOR TOMORROW

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Scintillant semi-final contests in men's singles and doubles and women's singles comprise this afternoon's card of competition in the forty-fifth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships, rounding out a week of exciting action before large galleries on the clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Title frays in mixed and women's doubles, already down to the final rounds, will be held over till tomorrow.

Today's bill gets under way at 2 o'clock, with Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. captain and third on the man-to-man seeded list, engaging Rufus Hartig, Carnegie Tech-Shannopin contender, who pounded through in the top bracket weakened by the default of 1932 Champion B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling. The feature of the program, however, arrives at 2:45 with Dr. John O'Loughlin, second seeded ace, and likewise a Winged Header, battling LeRoy Wier, rangy Cleveland crack.

WOMEN STARS CLASH

Meanwhile, at 3 o'clock, feminine semi-finalists will clash. In the upper section of the draw, Dorothy Anderson, Butler luminary and current custodian of the Honus Wagner Trophy, faces Mrs. Martha Guthrie Snowdon, successful veteran of many a West Penn women's event, while in the lower, Margaret Carspecken, of Morgantown, continues the quest of her initial Western Pennsylvania singles crown by opposing Dorothy Jarvis, of Sewickley, winner of district honors in 1927 and 1930.

The two-man milling begins at 3:30 as Billy O'Loughlin and Frank Broida, P. A. A.-Harvard combine, joust with the slashing Edgewooders, McCook Reed and Charley Lockhart.

Aside from a brace of third brocket women's singles affairs, wherein Mrs. Snowdon's stroke equipment and experience proved too much for Mary Edwards, 6-0, 6-1, and Miss Jarvis outhit Dolly Harris, of Edgewood, in 6-2, 6-3 baseline duel, yesterday's bill consisted entirely of dual skirmishing. In the masculine division, Wier and Keith flourished too many forecourt guns for the powerful Stantonians, Russ Unger and Hub Rinehart, who none the less performed prettily ere going under at 6-2, 7-5.

SEEDED PAIR LOSE

The Allegheny Country Club contigent of Mrs. John Ricketson III and Bill Brown reversed the dope in mixed doubles by eliminating Mrs. Snowdon and Howard Burgwin, Pittsburgh Golf Club premiers and second in the seeded group, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3. In the opposite half, Miss Carspecken and Paul Sullivan landed a bitterly fought 6-3, 6-4 decision over Frances Grimes, West Virginia University satellite, and Tack Hammer, perennial Westmoreland County champion.

Miss Carspecken and Miriam Sullivan remained in the running to repeat their '32 women's doubles conquest by defeating Miss Jarvis and Mrs. Don Simmons, 6-2, 9-7, and thereby attaining the finale.

TOURNEY ANNOUNCED

Announcement yesterday by Tennis Chairman Thomas A. Robinson has it that the second annual Fox Chapel Golf Club invitation doubles net tourney will start on the Fox Chapel turf rectangles on July 8, a fortnight from today. The meeting will carry through to include July 16, with time taken out wherever conflict with Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League matches may arise. Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman downed Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and Dr. Billy McElroy in thrilling five-set final as climax to the inaugural tournament a year ago.

The Western Pennsylvania tournament will not monopolize racquet activities hereabouts today, complete slate of matches being booked in the new Allegheny-Kiski Valley loop. Leechburg still claims primary attention as favored aggregation, but the race is waxing warm and is thus far no one's private possession. The summary:

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Third Round

Upper half—Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon defeated Mary D. Edwards, 6-0, 6-1.

Lower half—Dorothy Jarvis defeated Dolly Harris, 6-2, 6-3.

MEN'S DOUBLES

Fourth Round

Upper half—Dr. David L. O'Loughlin and Dr. John L. O'Loughlin defeated Austin Famariss and Paul G. Sullivan, 1-5, 6-3, LeRoy Wier and Leonard N. Keith defeated W. Russell Unger and H. M. Rinehart, 6-2, 7-5.

Lower half—Frank Broida and William J. Loughlin defeated Robert T. Lampus and Brosby Leeds, 7-5, 6-3.

MIXED DOUBLES

Semi-final Round

Upper half—Margaret Carspecken and Paul G. Sullivan defeated Frances Grimes and Edgar T. Hammer, 6-3, 6-4.

Lower half—Mrs. John Ricketson III and W. H. Brown, Jr., defeated Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon and Howard Burgwin, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES

Semi-final Round

Upper half—Margaret Carspecken and Miriam Sullivan defeated Dorothy Jarvis and Mrs. Don Simmons, 6-2, 9-7.

Lower half—Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon and Mrs. John Ricketson III defeated Frances Grimes and Mary D. Edwards, 6-2, 6-3.

Lott and Parker Near Title Duel

RIVER FOREST, Ill., June 24. (AP.)—The tenth episode in the ... becoming famous Frank ... George Lott tennis feud was ... on one step of posting ... quarter final round of the W... Tennis Association's men's sl... yesterday.

Parker, whose victory over Lott in this same tourney last year was one of the most notable of his seven-out-of-nine triumphs over the Davis Cup veteran, brushed aside John McDiarmid, of Ft. Worth, Tex., 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

Lott had even less trouble disposing of Jay Cohn, former national junior champion from Santa Monica, Cal., 6-3, 6-0, 6-1.

ANSWER TO QUERY

C. D. E. F. O.—The runner is safe.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Champion.

Many people were surprised at the victory of Johnny Goodman in the United States Open, and, of course, it was a tremendous feat, indeed. Goodmans' success, however, should not be taken in the light of a fluke or anything like it because his record in the National Open has been most convincing.

Only last year, at Fresh Meadow, he broke 70 in either the third or fourth round, and a 68 at Fresh Meadow was a great performance. Goodman, of course, was not rated among the favorites this year, but he deserved the great honor that came his way. Last summer, I had the pleasure and good fortune of playing against Goodman at Baltimore, in the semi-final round of the National Amateur championship, and I concluded, after being defeated by the young lad from the West, that he was one of the finest golfers I had ever seen. His game is sound in every department, and, while he may lack great hitting length, at the same time he gets satisfactory distance from the tees and never is handicapped on this account. He plays his iron shots in the most approved manner, and, as a short approacher, chipper and putter, I don't think there is a man in the land who can perform more consistently or more brilliantly than the little fellow who astounded California several years ago by beating Bobby Jones in the first round of the Amateur championship.

Francis Ouimet

SIMPLE GAME OFTEN WINS

One wonders how it is that a fellow like Macdonald Smith, Leo Diegel, Joe Turnosa and other great golfers fail where a comparative newcomer to the sport, such as Goodman, steps out and wins. No one can question the ability and skill of the above-named players. They have the game down to a science and can play any sort of a shot that may present itself. However, ability to play a variety of strokes does not win championships. I always have felt that Bobby Jones won his titles because he made the game as simple as he possibly could. He did not hit tee shots with a slight drift from left to right or else a draw unless situations called for them. Neither did he cater to the playing of a mixture of iron shots that some of the well-known golfers try. No, he merely teed up his ball, tried to hit in on the center of the face and as straight as he could down the fairway unless he was picking out some spot on which to place his tee shot. His iron shots were played in the same manner. In other words, there was nothing complicated about his play. He got himself into a groove whereby he could go on playing well for days and weeks at a time.

TYPICAL GOODMAN SHOT

Goodman is a similar type. He has a fine swing and is steady. Better than all these, in his make-up he has a persistency that is hard to subdue. At a critical stage of our match at Baltimore, Goodman misjudged his pitch to the thirteenth green, and his ball, landing well over, struck a downgrade and bounded into some blackberry bushes. I tried to be smart and keep my ball on the front edge of the green, even to the extent of getting into a trap which is short because I felt Goodman was in a hopeless position and I did not care to risk playing the same sort of shot that he did.

I found the trap, but, even so, I was well satisfied with my location because it was not far from the hole, and the trap was shallow. As I watched Goodman take his stance, I was almost convinced that he could do nothing but knock his ball out from the bushes. Any thought of his reaching the green seemed impossible and out of the question. He persevered and deliberated for a long time, and it took him several minutes to get his stance. You could see by his demeanor that he was determined to get everything out of the shot that he could. After moments of deliberation and care in getting himself set, he played a marvelous shot, not only out of the blackberry bushes, but actually on the green and 12 feet from the cup.

That one effort convinced me that the boy was not merely going through the motions, but was out on that golf course to win the golf match. Likewise, this same persistency was what carried him to success at North Shore. More power to the young lad! I think he has a great golfing future ahead of him.

SENATORS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

The Washington Senators, driving almost without interruption toward the American League lead for two weeks, finally have attained their goal. And present indications are that it will be quite a job to dislodge them.

The Senators stepped into undisputed possession of first place yesterday by beating the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3 while the New York Yankees, after hammering out a 10-6 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the first game of a doubleheader, lost the second, 5-4, to drop a half game behind.

NATS ON RAMPAGE

Washington now has pounded out 11 victories in 12 starts, has rolled up totals of 179 hits and 112 runs, never has dropped below 10 hits to the game and only once has fallen below seven runs.

The Philadelphia Athletics, with Dib Williams and Eric McNair acting like an entire ball team, placed themselves only a half game behind the third place Cleveland club by walloping the Indians 8-4.

The Boston Red Sox made it three out of four against Detroit by bunching their hits nicely off schoolboy Rowe to win 3-2.

REDS BEAT GIANTS

The second division clubs took all the "play" in the National League, leaving the standing of the leaders unchanged. Home runs by Ernie Lombardi and Sparky Adams and Eppa Rixey's six-hit pitching enabled the Cincinnati Reds to break a five-game losing streak with a 2-1 victory over the league leading New York Giants.

The last place Phillies assaulted Dizzy Dean for eight runs in the eighth and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 9 to 4 for their sixth straight triumph. Brooklyn's Dodgers finally solved Larry French's southpaw delivery in the eighth and put on a five run rally, topped by Tony Cuccinello's homer with the bases full, and beat Pittsburgh for the second time, 5-4. Boston and Chicago had a day off.

CARD REVISED IN NATIONAL

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—A schedule of 37 double headers and three rescheduled single games has been announced by the National League to bring its play-off program for postponed and tie games up to date. The Crawfords and the Whitaker team of the City League will clash in a doubleheader at Greenlee Field today, the first game being called for 4 o'clock. The same nines will meet in a single game tomorrow, starting at the same time.

Pittsburgh is host to the summer convention of the National Baseball Federation today.

This morning the sandlot moguls gathered at the Fort Pitt Hotel to open the business sessions. The visitors are to be tendered a banquet this evening.

William S. Haddock, president of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Commission, and Steve Cox are in charge of the session.

At today's gathering the sandlot moguls will make plans for the annual championship tourney, which is to be held in Pittsburgh this year.

GOB VICTIM OF HOAX

BOSTON, June 24.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, heavyweight boxing champion, was believed to be the victim of a hoax telephone message that sent him dashing over the road from his training camp at Orangeburg, N. Y., upon receiving word that one of his three children was seriously ill.

Mrs. Sharkey said none of the children was ill. The telephone call to Orangeburg was understood to have come from Lowell, 45 miles to the north of Boston. Mrs. Sharkey said:

"None of the children is sick. You know how excited Jack is over the children. I guess everything will be all right."

Mrs. Sharkey said she was at loss to explain the mysterious telephone message sent to the Orangeburg camp of her husband.

QUITS CAMP IN HURRY

Sharkey had just come in off the road with Tony Polozzolo and Al Lacey, his trainers, when he received a telephone call stating one of his three children was seriously ill.

The champion didn't even wait to be rubbed down, but scrambled into his street clothes and was away for Boston, sitting behind the wheel of the car himself. He is a demon driver and the chances are that he is making a record trip to Boston. He had planned on intensive training today.

VINES TO TURN PRO, REPORT

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Reports were current here today that Ellsworth Vines, Jr., has reached a tentative agreement with Big Bill Tilden to turn professional after the National tennis championships, and that he will receive $100,000 for a tour with Tilden.

The originator of the report is said to be Bill O'Brien, described as an agent for Big Bill. Tilden and Vines both are in Europe.

Tilden allegedly offered Vines $20,000 to turn professional last fall after his victory over Henri Cochet in the Nationals, but the offer was refused.

According to O'Brien, Tilden and Vines would open their tour in New York next January and play all the big cities en route to the coast.

Bell, McGuffin Clash for Title

WILMINGTON, Del., June 24.—(AP.)—Berkeley Bell, first seeded player, and Harold MacGuffin, seeded sixth, both New Yorkers, will meet today in the finals of the Delaware state grass court tennis championship.

Bell defeated Ray Palmer, of New York, in the semi-finals yesterday, 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-8, 6-2.

MacGuffin beat William Reese, of Georgia Tech, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

In the women's title finals, Miss Anne B. Townsend, of Merion, Pa., playing one of the greatest games of her net career, defeated the present titleholder, Mrs. John B. Jessup, of Wilmington, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

Later, Mrs. Jessup and Miss Townsend paired to win the women's doubles championship for the second year, defeating Mrs. De Lloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., and Cecilia Riegel, of Philadelphia, 6-3, 6-2.

Redmond, Stokes In Southern Final

ATLANTA, June 24.—(AP.)—Ralph Redmond, a 37-year-old veteran and all-around athlete of St. Petersburg, Fla., meets a Louisville, Ky., youngster, Earl Stokes, today for the southern amateur golf championship.

Firing sub-par golf in the semi-finals, Redmond eliminated the Walker Cup star, Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., yesterday, 6 and 5, as Stokes, who also was a stroke under par for 16 holes, won a surprise victory over Jack Toomer, of Hendersonville, N. C., 3 and 2.

Fight Results

At Chicago—Barney Ross defeated Tony Canzoneri, 10 rounds, for world lightweight championship; Johnny Pena defeated Nick Scalfa, 6 rounds; Vincent Sereci knocked out Al Sabano, 5 rounds; Georgie Turner defeated Orer Miller, 4 rounds; Dave Day defeated Izzy Labarsky, 4 rounds; Bill Connell and Sonny Drakeley drew,

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Marriage Will Not Change A Bad Actor

Shall Bee marry the Big Boy to "save him?"

And, if she does it, will he quit abusing her and getting plastered?

"I do love him," she wails, "even if we can't seem to ever get along, and he says that if we're married everything will be all right. But I don't know what to think."

Do you? Will he be different, once they march up the aisle together? Would you take a chance like that? Or have you?

Dear Miss Robinson:

Please, will you tell me what I should do? I am 21, and for three years I have been going with a young man, but we can never seem to really get along with each other. I have tried so hard, but it seems useless. I don't know what to think.

Whenever we have a little spat, he comes to see me with drink in him, or accuses me of going out with other fellows. I don't do that. I never have. And he knows that I am strongly against drink. I go to night school, and he insists that I go on account of meeting other fellows there. That gets me angry, and then we fight.

But I do love him. I think; I know I like him a lot. He is the first fellow I ever went out with.

He is always talking about getting married, but I have been putting him off and that gets him angry. When I talk to him about his drinking and his jealousy, he says that will be all right—that he will do better when we get married.

ADVISED BY MOTHER

He gave me a ring for Christmas. Then when we had a fight, he wanted it back, so I gave it to him. Every time he takes me to a show or gives me something, he's always throwing it up to me, or wanting it back. I have given him a lot of things, and never said anything about wanting them back. Should I ask for my things, too?

Mother doesn't want me to go with him. She says that I know what she has had to put up with from drink. What do you think? When he comes over drunk he calls me all kinds of bad names, and that I can't stand. So now we've quarrelled again. It has been four weeks now since I have seen him. This is the longest time we have been apart.

What should I do? When I see him now, I don't speak. Neither does he. Please help me. WONDERING BEE.

WILL NOT CHANGE

What should you do?

Let well enough alone, youngster! You're not speaking now? Then keep on not speaking—permanently!

And don't let any man tell you, ever, that he'll be "different" if you'll just marry him! He won't. If he doesn't respect you, and himself, enough to be on the square before you marry him, he won't do it afterward, no matter what he says.

As for this particular piece of tripe—what any regular girl could see in him in the first place is beyond me. By your own admission he's selfish and bad-tempered and mean, and to date he has cost you plenty of grief.

"But I love him!" you cry.

No, little girl; you don't love him. He's just a Bad Habit. Just as bad a habit as drink, or dope—and will ruin your life just as surely, if you hang on to him.

So cut him out, and go out and find yourself some Regular friends! And next time, set a value on yourself. Respect yourself too much to go with any man who won't respect you.

'MY, MOTHER, WHAT A LITTLE HAT YOU GOT!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Start out into the day troubled—with some kind of a load that really should be no load at all when you remember the pack that some folks carry right now, and have been footing it along under for a year or two! But the load looks big and black to the citizen or citizeness—big or little. Start out so—and if you are a real human with an impressionable mind it won't be long that you're out into the time by the clock that you will see something to make you whistle.

Things happen along like that if you prop your eyes open and present the old soft heart to the hurrying foot of beauty. She'll leave a print there if she has half a chance.

This came along very early in my day. A day, hot, hurried, that called me away from both the country—that I like—and my work—that I like when the Muse smiles—and she does not smile if the recipient of her favors is in too big a hurry—harrassed, with several things that bore a great and foreboding family resemblance to trouble. I thought of the Rocky Mountains, and a cabin thereupon, where nothing could get at me, and I could "do my art" without hindrance or heat.

And on the train I saw this modern, oh very modern, Madonna and her child. And her chapeau was the last word. And her little girl-child was the last word in little girls. Sweet and funny, and something wonderful to have—as children are. Said she, high and sweet and piping (and mother went pink, for she knew the area for five seats around heard), "My mother! What a little HAT you got!" (a la Red Riding Hood) "It's littler'n MINE!"

Which was nothing but the truth. Her young mother's eyes and mouth rounded, and then twinkled and laughed. And she hugged the very little girl to her, and whispered in the ear under the flaxen curls. Whispered what? Perhaps, "So I can look a little like you, dear!"

My day was set! I had seen one, just ONE was enough, of all the fine things the world has to offer.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Placing Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you be so good as to tell me the correct position for the salad fork . . . outside or inside the meat or fish fork?

I would place them as follows: Meat fork outside, salad fork inside. Some of my friends tell me that is incorrect.

2—Where should the teaspoon go when tea or coffee is served with the meat course? Would it be correct to place the teaspoon in front of the plate? M.

1—You are right . . . the salad fork is placed nearer the plate than the meat fork, whether the salad is served with the meat course or as a separate course. The rule is that we place the silverpieces in the order in which we are to use them, and we use the salad fork after we use the meat fork.

The exception to this would be, of course, if the salad is served as a first course. Then the salad fork would be placed farther from the plate than the meat fork.

2—Usually the teaspoon is placed on the saucer as the hostess serves the tea or coffee. However, if this isn't convenient, the teaspoon may be placed with the place silver, at the outside, or, as you suggest, above the plate.

Names Not Revealed

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be possible for you to give me the name of the girl who wrote in today's paper about her elopement? The motive and the explanation quite fits my sister, and I would like to know if possible, or have you send me part of the letter with the writing on it. BROTHER.

I'm sorry that I am not able to grant your request to reveal the identity of the writer of the letter or to show you her handwriting . . . but you will, I am sure, understand that there is to me a sacred relationship between the writers of the letters to this column and myself. In the years in which I have conducted this column I have never revealed the identity of the writer of a letter, nor have I ever used a "real" name, either in the body of the letter or in the signature.

I feel very strongly, VERY strongly, that I have no moral right to reveal a name or an identity. And I am sure that, on second thought, you will agree with me that this would be an impossible thing for me to do. You do understand . . . don't you?

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

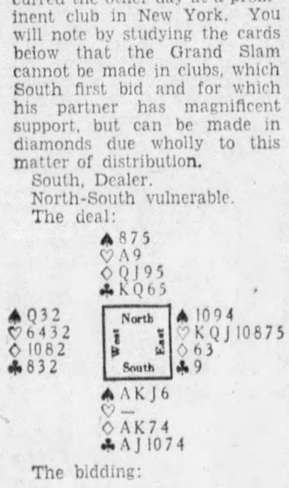
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Question of Distribution

I frequently refer to the fact that often it is better to have the trump suit divided 4-4 in the hands of the declaring partnership and a side suit which contains five cards in one hand and four or less in the other than vice versa. The reason for this preference is obvious after the slightest study. Upon a trump suit no discards can be obtained, whereas with side suits of unequal length losers in one hand may be discarded upon established low cards in the other.

An interesting example of a correctly bid Grand Slam occurred the other day at a prominent club in New York. You will note by studying the cards below that the Grand Slam cannot be made in clubs, which South first bid and for which his partner has magnificent support, but can be made in diamonds due wholly to this matter of distribution.

South, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
The deal:



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣ (1)	Pass	3 ♣ (2)	3 ♡ (3)
3 ♠ (4)	Pass	4 ♣ (5)	Pass
4 ◇ (6)	Pass	6 ◇ (7)	Pass
7 ◇ (8)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A very sound Opening Forcing bid of two. The hand contains 5½ honor-tricks and three biddable suits.

2—Observe that North deliberately has withheld one or more raises in order to permit the exchange of information at the lower stages of bidding. This course is absolutely safe as bidding cannot stop short of game.

3—Rather useless, but East hopes that it may interfere with the exchange of information and perchance make it impossible for opponents to bid a Slam or to make it if one is bid.

4—An alternative bid here would be four hearts, but that would crowd the bidding too much as South still has two suits to show.

5—North, too, has other alternative bids. At this place four notrump might be a better bid, but the bid of four clubs is also safe as it is still below the level of game.

6—South now shows a complete picture of his hand distribution; because of the order in which the bids are made, he must hold five clubs, four spades and four diamonds.

7—North reads the story of South's distribution. He realizes that the club suit is no longer in his partner's hand than either spades or diamonds. Probably the length is immaterial if the bidding is to stop at this point, but North desires to encourage his partner to bid seven if the strength of the hand warrants it. Actually, the only danger in a Grand Slam would be in duplication of values. This seems to have been dissipated by East's bid of the heart suit.

8—South's bid for the Grand Slam is fully justified as he knows that his partner must have four clubs and four diamonds on his bidding and in addition either the Ace of hearts or an honor in spades which assures the success of the contract.

Of course the hand is made without the slightest difficulty. One spade is discarded from the closed hand on the heart Ace in Dummy and one spade in the Dummy is discarded upon the established club—a result which could not have been reached had the hand been played with clubs as trump. In that case the success of a Grand Slam bid, if undertaken, would have rested upon a finesse in spades, which would have failed.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You hold:

♠ K J 10 9 ♡ A 5 ◇ A K 5 3 ♣ K Q 2

East and West are vulnerable. You, South, are not. East deals and bids one spade. What do you bid?

Answer: Pass. This pass is the bid which is most likely to bring about the greatest profit for you and your partner on the hand. If East should secure the contract at one spade, the chances are that he will go down 300 or more. If you and your partner have enough strength for a game, East may go down as much as 500 or 700. In addition, West may bid something, and now East and West will get into further trouble. In fact, if they get very little higher, you will be able to double for a penalty. If you double for a Takeout, the chances are 100 to 1 against your partner, North, leaving it in, and East and West will be relieved from their self-laid trap. Even if you and your partner miss a game, said game, not vulnerable, is only worth about 300 points, and the set, even at one spade, undoubled, should be at least that.

Madge's Husband, in a Fury, Batters Nick

I had no breath for even a faint cry as I saw Nick's great bulk launch itself toward Dicky. It did not seem as though any man could resist that savage onslaught, and terror numbed me icily.

Then, miraculously, Dicky was standing at one side while Nick, plunging past him, saved himself from falling only by a mighty effort. With swift fury Dicky was upon him, and I heard the sickening sound of fists crashing against flesh and bone. I closed my eyes in stark terror, then Harry Underwood's voice said sharply:

"That's enough, Dicky-bird. You don't want to kill him outright."

I opened my eyes and saw Nick sinking to his knees beneath the blows that Dicky was raining upon him, while from his mouth were issuing inarticulate sounds, hardly human.

"He's broken his jaw, all right," I heard Hugh whisper, and there was grim joy in his voice. Then I saw Dicky put his hands inside Nick's coat collar and, jerking the gangster to his feet, he half pulled, half dragged him over to me and dropped him, broken and groveling, at my feet.

"What shall I do with him, Madge?" he asked, his voice still choing with rage. "I'll stamp the life out of him, if you say the word."

JEALOUSY STILL EVIDENT

"Take him away," I whispered.

"Better put the fear of God into him for the future, old man," Hugh advised in a low tone. "These wasps sometimes have a sting saved up, even after they're crushed."

"I'll leave that little job for you and Harry," Dicky returned, and suddenly there was a chill in his voice. "I've got to get that boat up and out of here, pronto. I'm responsible for it, and I'm not needed here any longer. There's my Boy Scout good deed for today."

"Dick, old man!" Hugh's voice was suddenly insistent, though I guessed what it cost him to speak in this intimate fashion after the chilly intonation which Dicky had just used to him. "Let me take the boat up, and you stay here. It's—your—place—and I'm sure I could manage the machine."

"Sorry, but why the sudden desire to switch jobs?" Dicky inquired silkily. "You're—filling my place—here—to the queen's taste, and I'm conceited enough to imagine that I have a little edge on you in handling the boat. So, I think I prefer to get out."

There was venom beneath the apparently courteous words, and that Hugh savored every bitter drop to the full I was sure. But his voice was absolutely unruffled as he answered Dicky's rude diatribe.

MESSAGE WRITTEN

"As you wish, of course," he said, and then Harry Underwood struck in quickly.

"Wait a minute, you wild ass of the desert. It's all right for you to go, but there's a little job for you to do on the way. The chief, who's at that farm house with all the rest, told me that if possible you were to drop a message telling him the state of affairs. So wait till I write and weight it."

He busied himself for a minute with a fountain pen and the back of an envelope, writing by the illumination of a flashlight held by Wynne.

"Here it is," he said when he had finished, and read us the message:

"Marion safe with us. Everything cleared up. Bringing Owen, wounded, and two other wounded men, not ours, with us. Get ready to take care of them for several days. Send messenger to Lil about Marion. Signed, Underwood."

"All right, give it over," Dicky said.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About Shutting Out Contagious Diseases

Modern methods of quarantine and isolation have saved the world from the spread of many plagues and epidemics. They were common in the days when little was known about germs and the causes of disease. By means of quarantine and isolation serious diseases can be prevented from spreading to different parts of the community, country, or even the world.

Dr. Copeland

The word quarantine is often confused with isolation. When we speak of "quarantine" we refer to the detention of persons who may have been exposed to the germs of a disease but have not as yet shown any signs of having the disease. The term comes from an Italian word, "quaranta," meaning "forty." It dates back to ancient Venice, where it was customary to detain in the harbor for a period of forty days any ship having pestilence aboard.

By "isolation" is meant the separation of a person who actually has an infectious and contagious disease. He is kept from all well persons.

There are many different forms of quarantine, such as maritime quarantine, interstate, house and cattle quarantine. All are concerned with the prevention and spread of disease.

Nothing is more fascinating than to watch the quarantine boat and officials meet one of the great incoming trans-Atlantic steamers. All the passengers are carefully inspected for signs of contagious diseases.

Interstate quarantine is not as rigid as maritime quarantine. But special efforts are made to prevent persons having any of the diseases I have mentioned from traveling from state to state. It is against the law for those who suffer from such diseases as scarlet fever, typhoid, measles, whooping cough, infantile paralysis, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and epidemic meningitis to cross state lines. It is difficult to enforce this law, but every citizen should realize the dangers attached to interstate travel by the contagious sick. They should refrain from doing so.

The isolation of contagious diseases is best accomplished at a hospital where special wards are available. Often this is not possible and the patient may be kept at home, provided strict rules of isolation are enforced.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When plying the lipstick use a magnifying mirror. It is the only way to avoid sliding over lip edges or smearing up the white skin surface. Stretch the lips smooth, then the synthetic health coloring won't just touch the high spots, make lips look crepey. Do a fade-out gradually toward the lip ends.

The paper curl is achieved by dividing the hair in small strands, starting at the end to form a circle that continues on up to the scalp. Cover with a three-cornered piece of paper, pin tight, let remain until the hair is dry. Best time to do it is immediately after the shampoo while the hair contains some moisture—isn't dripping, of course.

After the shampoo the hair should glisten and each thread should fluff away from its neighbors. If the teeth of the comb show a gray deposit, tresslocks have not been thoroughly rinsed, soap scum is clinging to the strands. A most important detail of the shampoo is the first rinsing before soap is applied.

Thick at the waistline? Wouldst be slender thar? All right. Lie on the back on the floor, hands under the hips, lift the right leg high, roll to the left, touch the floor with the toes, leg stretched. Roll back and repeat. Same with left leg. It is the muscle pull as well as the rolling that slimmers down measurements, creates the stream line.

COLLARS ARE THE VOGUE

By LAURA WHEELER

Collars are in style—dainty, frilly, ruffly ones—collars with bows—with jabots—tailored collars with simple embroidery. All help to make the summer costume daintier and more flatteringly feminine. The ruffled collar is adjustable to any neckline or size, and is attractive in a dainty material, permanent finish organdy being especially practical. It is very simple to make, and since its construction permits it to be laid out flat, it presents no laundering problem. The collar has tie-ends which form the fashionable bow which is repeated on the cuffs. A dainty touch of embroidery can be added, as illustrated.

The second collar is tailored and has a jabot, as the vogue demands. It may be made plain or with embroidery, as illustrated. The embroidery is very simple and is designed so that it can be made on an ordinary sewing machine or by hand in outline or running stitch. The cuffs repeat the embroidery.

Pattern No. 471 consists of a transfer pattern of the two collars and cuffs, illustrated with the embroidery motifs, complete directions for making the collar sets, as well as suggestions for trimming glove-cuffs to match.

Home Conferences

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

With the whole business world, which includes both men and women, going into "conference" incessantly, it seems queer that a man and woman having children fail to get together in one of the most important conferences of all, but muddle along disagreeing and bickering before the children and about those children.

It must be most confusing, then again at times most enlightening to hear oneself discussed by the man and woman in power, but it isn't healthful.

A child's vague idea of home and parents is primarily tied up with unity and consistency. That feeling of unity and security, of balance and safety is tragically jeopardized when mother and father disagree before the child, particularly when the topic concerns the child himself.

Before baby comes isn't too soon to go into conference and get a working idea of what your mate thinks about discipline, hygiene, moral values and his aspirations for the child to come. To be sure, you can't meet every contingency before it arises, but you can at least hit upon some coordinated plan of action. And you can resolve to have more conferences after the child has come and those to be private ones.

I know of no conferences that can bring so much harmony and such constructive effects as the parent conference, without the child as an audience.

Sheriff's Liens

CITY OF PITTSBURGH

Delinquent Municipal Liens

Pursuant to Acts of General Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania, providing when, how, upon what property and to what extent liens shall be allowed for taxes and municipal improvements, etc., approved May 16, 1923, P. L. 207, writs of scire facias having been issued out of the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, at the instance of the City of Pittsburgh, in the following cases of Delinquent Municipal Liens requiring the defendants named therein to file affidavits of defense or, in default, judgment to be entered. Now, notice is hereby given to the defendants hereinafter named and unless affidavits of defense be filed to said claims in the Prothonotary's Office of Allegheny County within fifteen (15) days after June 24th, 1933, judgment may be entered and the property described in the liens sold to recover the amounts of the said claim.

Official Pittsburgh 111

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on June 19 1933, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, with its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 2766.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading to a width of 40 feet, paving and curbing of Salisbury street, from Clover street to Arlington avenue, including, as may be necessary, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby and sinking of exploratory test holes; letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited thereby, and providing, further, for the payment of the city's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Salisbury street, from Clover street to Arlington avenue, be graded to a width of 40 feet, paved and curbed, and that, as may be necessary, approaches be graded on streets affected thereby and exploratory test holes be sunk.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points, including, as may be necessary, the grading of said approaches and sinking of exploratory test holes; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of $22,000, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the city's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance, with especial reference to Ordinance No. 418, approved July 18, 1931.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on May 15, 1933, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, with its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 2541.

AN ORDINANCE—Widening Salisbury street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Clover street to the first angle east of Clover street, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Salisbury street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Clover street to the first angle east of Clover street, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes, the following described property, to-wit:

Beginning on the easterly line of Clover street at a point distant north 8 degrees 28 minutes east 4.0 feet along the easterly line of Clover street from the dividing line between property now or late of George C. Brothers and Virginia M., his wife and property now or late of James L. Hopper; thence extending south 36 degrees 32 minutes east 5.66 feet to the dividing line between the above-mentioned properties; thence along the dividing line between the above-mentioned properties south 81 degrees 32 minutes east 76 feet to the westerly line of property now or late of Sarah A. McKenna; thence south 82 degrees 16 minutes 05 seconds east 79.47 feet to the present northerly line of Salisbury street at the first angle therein east of Clover street; thence along the present northerly line of Salisbury street south 84 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds west 133.69 feet to a point of curve in the same; thence continuing westwardly and northwardly along the same by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 24 feet and a central angle of 104 degrees 25 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 43.74 feet to a point of tangent on the easterly line of Clover street; thence along the easterly line of Clover street north 8 degrees 28 minutes east 13.04 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Salisbury street in the Sixteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Clover street to the first angle east of Clover street, to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

JUDGES AWARD CONTEST PRIZES

It was late last night when the judges completed the examination of the dinner menus submitted in the first week's Sun-Telegraph Prudence Penny Contest. There were many entries and all were carefully planned. And when everything had been eliminated with the exception of the 19 to be awarded prizes, the real big job of the judging began. Which was the best? Which was second best? Which was third best? Well, it required almost as much time to classify these 19 selections as it did to examine the remaining 2,000 in the contest.

The prize-winning selections will be published in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The judges were: Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs of Western Pennsylvania; Mrs. Mary T. Horan, president of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, and Mrs. Cyrus Trompetter, chairman of the home economics committee of the Pittsburgh section, Council of Jewish Women.

In the meantime for the second week's $100 in cash prizes, entries are coming in with a rush. Irrespective of any entries submitted in Contest No. 1, new entries must be sent in for the second week. Contest No. 1 is over. This week's is an entirely new test. The stacks of new menus that already have been submitted are an evidence of the fact that the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity are still keenly interested in preparing prize menus on the question: "Can four persons be served a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?"

On another page of today's Sun-Telegraph there is an entry blank with a complete set of rules and other information. Housewives may submit as many entries as they wish, and if additional blanks are required they may be had for the asking at any of these leading stores:

Butler's Stores, Kroger's Stores, Clover Farm Stores, Triangle Stores, McCann's and Donahoe's. It isn't too late to enter. If contestants will shop around in these stores they will find that at today's low level prices, plenty of foodstuffs are available for the preparation of an attractive menu under conditions stipulated in the contest question.

RETRIAL DENIED IN POISON PLOT

Mrs. Mary Chalfa and Mrs. Anna Allas, convicted of first degree murder in the Munhall "poison plot" are to be sentenced Monday, Judge J. Frank Graff announced, after refusing them a new trial.

They face life sentences, recommended by the jury that found them guilty of the death of Stephen Allas, 12, step-son of Mrs. Allas.

In refusing a new trial, the judge also refused a petition for the exhumation of the bodies of three children who they are accused of poisoning for a chemical analysis. Attorney Louis Little, counsel for the women, said an appeal to the Supreme Court would be filed as soon as sentence is pronounced.

Auto Drivers Start 10,000-Mile Test Run

A test run of 10,000 miles averaging 800 miles per day was started at 8:30 this morning from the entrance of the Gulf Building. The trip which will be made in a Ford car will try to make the same schedule as the railroads to various Western Pennsylvania towns.

The test sponsored by the Ford Motor Company and the Gulf Refining Company, was planned by W. A. Cook, of the Ford Service Department. The drivers A. J. William, G. E. Dimling and J. E. Vernon, will work in 12-hour shifts.

Tarentum Corps At W. Va. Reunion

CHESTER, W. Va., June 24.—(AP.)—Five thousand members of the American Legion in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia will gather here today for their fourth annual reunion.

Nineteen musical units, including the crack Massillon (O.), and Tarentum (Pa.), drum corps and the Canton (O.), band, will be in the parade which will be reviewed by National Commander Louis Johnson, of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Gibson Comes Home, Gives Reporters 'Slip'

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Gibson, retiring United States Ambassador to Belgium and spokesman for the Hoover administration in disarmament matters, returned today on the liner President Roosevelt.

There was no advance notice that he was aboard the liner, and he slipped away from the pier without an interview.

SAVAGE PARADISE

Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas

By MARGARET MATCHES

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Father Kirschbaum, the beloved missionary who ruled this part of the head-hunters' territory, had been watching for us. Now he stepped out on his long and cheerless veranda to greet Jim and me as we slowly approached. As I reached the house the thought gripped me: "Twenty years already in this place, and now the rest of his life!" The mission house was a long, one-story, rambling building, composed of several small, stern, bare rooms, each opening on the veranda. The house was built, however, of timber instead of limbung poles, unpainted, weather-beaten timber. Still, it was a priest's house, and the good father probably didn't even realize that it was wretchedly comfortless. Talking in his patois of pidgin English-German, he conducted us to his study. It contained a long board table and four cheap chairs from "down south," and an oak-stained bookcase that held thick, mildewed volumes in English and German on anthropology and New Guinea.

The rest of our party greeted us cheerfully. The father offered us his own austere refreshment of lime juice and water. And then, everybody taken care of, the missionary settled down and in great contentment puffed away at a cigar from a box presented by our skipper. Luxuries were few and keenly appreciated up the Sepik.

Precious few white men had found their way up to Marienberg. The two or three recent expeditions into the Sepik country that have recently been accomplished did not come that way until many months later. Now that the eyes of science have been turned toward New Guinea it is quite possible that Father Kirschbaum will play host with comparative frequency. He may like it, or he may not; he is not a gregarious soul. I am glad I met the Sepik and Father Kirschbaum before airplanes and wandering scientists make the achievement a casual affair.

PRIEST'S ASSISTANT

While we were listening to the father, a tall, very odd-looking man—odd because of the peering expression that his monstrously thick spectacles gave his eyes—passed the doorway. His shoulders were stooped, or perhaps his head merely bent forward, in the manner of myopic people who are always regarding objects with unnatural intensity. He looked in at us—I am sure that he had come especially to join the crowd—but after a glance he retreated. I think he couldn't cope with the presence of a lady. He was Brother Joaquin, Father Kirschbaum's assistant, generally known as "the Bruder." He used to be a butcher back in Germany; now he is a missionary, as well as an anthropologist of parts.

I met him later; Jim and I came upon him on a corner of the veranda, where he was intently examining a dead moth. He avoided looking at me, possibly not conscious of the fact. He seemed a dull, hulking clod, but I knew that he was very brilliant and entitled to much respect. Well, he would have a lot of time to study anthropology and moths along the Sepik. More power to him!

DEMAND RETRIBUTION

There is no doubt that Father Kirschbaum's influence in many ways has been great in the wild Sepik country, though he has opened the way for other white men who are less scrupulous and wise. One white man penetrating the hinterland may make the way of the next easy or hard. Too often white men who visited villages in the hinterland have shown no respect for native tradition, etiquet or custom; they have stolen priceless treasures from the ghost-houses, plundered or taken advantage of the natives, or, worst of all, have involved themselves with the marys, or allowed their own natives to philander, and have escaped. Some later white man has to pay the penalty, for the offense is never forgotten until there is a "pay back." It may be years before another white man comes that way, but upon his head if it is humanely possible, will be heaped the pent-up wrath of the village.

I asked Father Kirschbaum whether he considered that his long years of labor among these people had achieved any spiritual effect among them. Shrugging his shoulders, he said he admitted neither success nor failure there. Sometimes, he said, he thinks he has made an impression, whereupon the "black-bokis" skin will appear as a proud adornment on the very mission grounds—the symbol of the killer. Thus, time after time, does the ingenuous native raise the suspicion that he is all untouched by the years of patient labor for his soul.

The Sepik River people do things in a big way. Each village has its ghost-house, house-tambaran, which is a tremendous structure 50 or 60 feet high and sometimes 200 feet long, built of palm thatch. Great carved poles uphold the roof, which extends far out over the entrance, giving a dim, cavernous effect to the interior; also the unpleasant suggestion of a crocodile's wide-open jaws. On either side of the ghost-house is usually a large stone, frequently of beautiful blue basalt. These are "sacrifice stones;" after a raid, resulting in at least one victim, a piece of the unfortunate captive's flesh is placed under a stone to appease the spirit, or tambaran, dwelling within it.

PRIMITIVE WARFARE

Ghost-houses are only for men, and heavy penalty would befall the woman who dared enter the sinister, sacrosanct building. The roof is decorated with rows of skulls; hundreds of skulls adorn the interior, together with sacred carvings, weapons of dead warriors, bamboo war-pipes, masques, kundus, and garamuts, which are used in their frequent feasts, dances and singsings.

The most famous product of the Sepik country is skulls. Time was when they were comparatively easy to acquire, but the Government has forbidden any one to bring, without official permission, a human skull out of the Sepik district, on penalty of fine, imprisonment, etc. And very properly so, because while nothing on earth could persuade a native to part with one of the sacred skulls from a ghost-house, he would obligingly kill friend or enemy, and truss up his head for a few sticks of tobacco or a bright trinket.

Intertribal warfare is continually going on just as it was a thousand and more years ago. They fight with bamboo-tipped, poisoned arrows, deadly, sure and swift. A victorious band of raiders sever the heads of their victims, and, leaving the hair thereon, smoke them, having filled the skull with clay. Then the eye-sockets are filled with shells or mother-of-pearl, the heads are painted in fearful and ghastly design, and the hair is dressed in long twists plastered with mud, grease and oil.

WOMEN NOT PERMITTED

A ghost-house trimmed with a few hundred of these pleasant little trophies must be one jolly place to hang around in. About the only advantage that a New Guinea mary enjoys, so far as I can see, is that she is not expected, or permitted, to take part in the pleasures of the ghost-houses. I wonder . . . I wonder if a New Guinea mary has ever been curious or courageous enough to buck tradition and sneak into a ghost-house. If she ever did and was discovered, she doubtless underwent the most hideous punishment for the sacrilege. We have no parallel for the heinousness of the crime of a native woman entering a men's clubhouse in New Guinea. The women firmly believe that if they merely gazed upon a trophy they would die.

Father Kirschbaum showed us a "one only" photograph, taken by himself of something which probably no other white man had ever laid his eyes upon. He took the photograph in the native village of Topher, up the Little Ramu River, took it in a ghost-house. This was the marvelous photograph of a complicated tapestry of brilliantly colored feathers—a vast thing that stretched entirely across the rear of the ghost-house. The two central figures were, quite obviously, male and female deities, and surrounding them were symbols and pictures of bewildering variety and detail. Even from the black and white print I could sense the beauty and brilliancy of this great tapestry. This is for the eyes of the fully initiated only. Women, or even novitiates, never gaze upon it, for it is the most sacred of the village's tambarans. It is a supreme example of the art of a curiously creative and imaginative people.

BOYS INITIATED

There are three great initiations for a boy of the coastal Sepik region. The first is when the pickaninny emerges into boyhood, when he is given the mal, a brief loin-garment of bark-cloth. Then at the age of fourteen, there is another singsing, and the boy gets a new mal; now, too, he is instructed in blowing the tambaran (tambaran here meaning the long bamboo flute that is sounded in war times). And now—oh awful, breathless moment!—he sees some of the lesser carved effigies from a ghost-house, and from this day on he is allowed to enter the house-tambaran.

Upon the third initiation the youth achieves full manhood. He is taught the final mysteries of the tribe, and has a voice in the common council, being at this period about twenty years old. As if all these dignities were not enough, he is permitted to wear the tall hat, such as I wheedled out of that poor soul at Marienberg.

At the time of the third initiation the young men are instructed in the arts of the village, such as wood-carving, the curing of skulls, construction of their houses, playing on the tambaran, the fine points of warfare, and various village customs. When they are considered proficient in their pursuits and arts a big singsing is held, when the new-made "men" are adorned with the ornaments they have made during their novitiate. They have built a ghost-house of their own which belongs to them as long as they live, and which is gradually decorated with skulls and trophies won by its members.

Then comes the truly big event. They are men grown, but now they have to go out and prove themselves, for tribal custom decrees that a young man may not marry until he has become a killer and brought back the victim's head. It is when he has killed another man that the dignity of the black skin of the flying fox is conferred upon a Sepik young buck. A boy who has killed and brought back a skull may wear the black skin, even though he has not received the final rites of initiation. He is a killer, and may take unto himself a wife.

A curious custom among certain tribes in New Guinea is that of covering the heads of all married women. The bride dons a net immediately after the wedding and never removes it.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Signed .....
Date of Birth.....Address.....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Junior Patrol Members Planning Summer Fun

With school out for all members of the Junior Patrol except the Pittsburgh members, the patrol captains are planning their summer good times. It looks as though this would be a mighty busy summer for all the members.

Sure, we know it's hot, but every good Junior Patrol member knows how to take care of himself in the hot weather. If a fellow doesn't play too hard in the hot sun, and doesn't drink too much cold water all at once, he can have a lot of fun even though the mercury is up near 90 and 100.

Why not a swimming party, you patrol members? Everybody knows that there is nothing like a swim to keep cool. It's more fun when all members swim together. There are races to swim, diving to learn, and water games to play, but always be sure that there's a life guard near. One of the things that Junior hopes for this summer is that every member will be very careful in the water.

HAVE FUN, BUT BE SAFE!

Lots of kids, boys especially, have just a little too much confidence in their strength. They swim too long and too far. That's dangerous. A real, honest member of the Junior Patrol won't try to show off in the water. He'll have fun and play hard, but he will be always sure that he has some strength left after a swim so that if he has to, he can help others.

A letter from Cecelia H. Geldrich, of Crucible, Pa., asks us to arrange for a different time for the Junior Patrol broadcasts. It seems that Cecelia and her friends in Crucible can't listen in on the program because they don't have daylight saving time in that town, and they are still in school when the program goes on the air. It would be very difficult to change the time of the broadcast, but now that school is over, we're sure that the time won't make a great deal of difference.

PICNIC MEETINGS

Through letters to the Junior Patrol we learn that many captains are arranging special meetings for their members. One captain writes that he has a show of some kind for the members at each meeting. This is a very fine idea, and is an important suggestion for other captains. Other captains plan picnics and meetings together. The idea is to pack a lunch and go out in the country somewhere. When they reach the picnic grounds they eat their lunch, and then hold their meeting. After the meeting the captain and the members go swimming if there is a place to swim nearby.

Plans are also being made by captains to take the boys of the club on hikes in the country. Of course this is a little too strenuous for the girls, but perhaps they can get together and have a little party of their own.

CLUB BRODACASTS

Don't forget, Junior Patrol members, to listen to the special club broadcasts every week over Station WCAE. And if you have any talent at all, be sure to let Quinn Hall know, and maybe you can perform over the air. Many radio stars are found in just this way, and you may be one to be "discovered" by the officials at the station.

And don't forget, either, that Mr. Hall and Junior want to see those pictures. Separate pictures of the captain and lieutenant are best, but snapshots of your entire patrol, taken by a friend, would be nice, too. Write your name and address on the back of each picture you send. Maybe you have a snapshot of your patrol helping others. Sent it along, too.

Junior Patrol news is going to appear in this column daily. Watch for it, and have your patrol lieutenant or captain send in the latest news about your patrol often!

Many brilliant ideas have been advanced for increasing Federal revenue—but Congress always falls back on boosting income taxes.

Why not simplify the whole thing?—have all pay checks mailed direct to the government.

And let the man of moderate income get along on loans from the R. F. C.

Law Plays No Favorites

The long arm of the government has grown claws on both ends.

It reaches out, swivels around and knocks the malefactor of great wealth for a derby loop.

It King Kongs in the other direction and lowbridges the petty chisler to a sputtering and sizzling crescendo of mouse-bitten alibis and irrevocable thumbprints.

Everything is fish that has been netted so far. All the eggs are in one mothproof basket. Atlanta is that bourne in which the footweary traveler lingereth until the letter of the law has added its retaliatory postscript.

The old prescription of a lens for an optician's chart and a molar for an elephant's tusk has been revived and consolidated.

No man is too weak or too mighty to wiggle through the meshes or rip the net to shreds. Get down on your knees, my lads, and be thankful that your old man made you learn a trade.

The subterranean methods of tunneling to wealth and fame are being discarded in favor of moisture in the eyebrows and an honest day's work.

That's because John Government has suddenly sprouted muscles and is tracking the fox to his lair.

You may stay within the law. But they'll get you if one ear is over the building line.

The illustrious are being kicked around with those of lesser degree. The pulling of hidden wires no longer starts the marionettes on a graceful, subservient series of gavotting capers. When you pull a string now it rings a fire alarm.

Knock off a loose, morose financial gadget now and you are like the oyster who looked at the 12 walruses on the jury and said, "I ain't got no friends in that panel."

And it makes us all feel more serene and reconciled to realize that the conniving and the flimnagling have ceased. The justice of the high, the low and the middle is for one and all. And for some, it is twice.

It's like an old-fashioned dance. Check your hat before you get your head cracked.

Hope for Coal Industry

Pittsburgh Operators Have Chance to Regain Lost Markets—Brief Comment on Local News.

The National Industrial Recovery Act has excited the coal operators and miners of the Pittsburgh district. They see in its provisions for the regulation of industry and the elimination of cutthroat competition an opportunity for revolutionary changes in the coal business as it has been conducted in recent years. This is of direct interest to every Pittsburgher.

Soft coal was, and is, one of the foundations on which Pittsburgh's commercial prosperity rests. To be sure, it no longer possesses the importance that once attached to it. West Virginia and Kentucky have taken away much of the business that once went to Pittsburgh operators. But the National Industrial Recovery Act promises a revision in trade practices, and therein we have a chance to regain lost markets.

In 1914 Pennsylvania shipped 10,639,755 tons of coal to the Great Lakes; in 1929 we shipped 7,774,443 tons. West Virginia's lake cargo shipments increased from 8,602,515 tons in 1914 to 19,560,660 tons in 1929, and Kentucky's in the same period from 858,827 to 6,814,482 tons. The figures furnish a pretty good idea of what happened to Pittsburgh's coal business.

We lost millions of tons of coal business to South- ern operators because the latter, although two or three times as far away from the lake markets as Pittsburgh, enjoyed freight rates only 15 to 30 per cent higher than those that we had to pay. It costs us $1.46 to ship a ton of coal 172 miles to Lake Erie; an operator in the Kanawha field of West Virginia pays $1.81, or only 35 cents more, though his haul is 370 miles.

The fact remains, however, that the Southern op- erator does have to pay 35 cents a ton more, and this would be a handicap were he not favored by much lower wages and taxes. But the National Industrial Recovery Act has some provisions governing wages, and if they can be used to force our Southern competitors to pay a scale more nearly equal to that paid in the Pennsylvania fields we will be in better condition to compete for the lake cargo trade.

In 1929 the number of men employed in the soft coal fields of Pennsylvania was 132,000. This was 52,000 less than were employed in 1914, but the number just before the onset of the depression was still sufficiently high to mark bituminous coal mining as one of our major industries. All Pittsburgh will feel the favorable effect of a substantial revival in a branch of our commerce in which so many persons are employed.

While the consequences of the National Industrial Recovery Act, so far as the coal industry is concerned, are still highly problematical, there remains little doubt that Pittsburgh will benefit from another section of the act, under authority of which the federal government is to embark upon its program of public works. The delegation which went to Washington to promote the flood control project returns with the statement that prospects are bright.

The fact that the flood prevention plan is in such shape that work can be started almost immediately is one of the big arguments in its favor. That should apply, also, to the wharf improvement program. The Department of Public Works has been studying plans for the better utilization of the water front for many years.

The announcement that witnesses subpenaed to appear next Monday before the United States grand jury investigating election frauds have been excused until July 6 is taken to mean that the inquiry will be more exhaustive than was expected. Well, every honest citizen will be glad to see the job done thoroughly, no matter how much time and money are required.

Every honest citizen has a direct interest in the investigation, because of the hope it offers of protection for his vote. As things have stood for a number of years, many honest votes have counted for nothing in Allegheny County and might just as well have not been cast because they were counterbalanced by crooked votes. Restoration of the public's faith in the power of the franchise is of prime importance.

The public, we believe, will approve the decision of Judge Benjamin Lencher, of Juvenile Court, to permit a 6-year-old ward of the court to remain with his aged foster-mother, notwithstanding that she lives in a hovel. The child has been with the woman since he was two weeks old, and there is a deep and reciprocal affection between them. Love compensates for a lot of deficiencies.

Nevertheless it is incumbent on the court and on the social welfare agencies co-operating with it to see that the woman's habitation is improved. It is not only unfit that a child should be reared amid such surroundings—it is against public policy to permit adults to dwell in such a house. The Pittsburgh Housing Association might well give this particular problem its attention.

A wild animal, thought to be a panther, is reported roaming the Allegheny National Forest. The killing of a horse is attributed to the beast. It is very doubtful that the panther, long since exterminated, has found its way back to Pennsylvania. It must be admitted, however, that although wolves also were exterminated many years ago, several specimens, supposedly escaped from menageries, have been killed in the state in recent years.

Speed and action! You will find them vividly depicted in the frontispiece of the Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It is a split-second photograph of young Richard Koger riding at the Allegheny Country Club. In quite a different mood, but also pleasing, are the pictures of Lewis A. Park's rock garden and swan pond, and a sunset scene on the Monongahela.

What is this thing called love? The subject is discussed in an interesting article in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It deals with the case of wealthy Mr. Welsh, who, sued for breach of promise, said he was "incapable of love." But there were many gushing letters, and the jury granted the plaintiff $25,000 damages.

In Puck, the Comic Weekly, another supplement with tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph, the interesting adventures of Boob McNutt are continued. Mike and Ike make a grave mistake in attempting to conceal Boob's $100,000. You will be amused also by Tillie the Toiler, Barney Google, the Van Swaggers, Sappo and the host of other comic characters whose doings are pictured in Puck.

A sensitive woman can work up a case of "mental cruelty" against her husband, if he merely so much as squints at her makeup or scrapes the burnt end off his toast.

If whole meals ever do come all put up in cans, no bachelor will feel sorry for himself—which looks pretty dark for marriage. Because, if you can't get a man feeling sorry for himself, how are you ever going to get him to the altar?

* * *

Marriage and an artistic career are the oil and water that won't mix—and the career, like the oil, always comes out on top.

* * *

A philandering husband seems to be like a bedsheet that is too short—just something that you can't do anything about.

* * *

Jealousy is regarded as a very archaic emotion, now that a man starts right in by offering a girl merely a co-operative interest in his kisses, time and affection and a limited parking time in his telephone list.

A man always loves an intelligent girl—on theory; a nice girl—on principle; and a beautiful girl—on sight.

Love is the "homing instinct" of the heart—infatuation is the hunting instinct.

* * *

Too many mothers think of their sons as confirmed bachelors, instead of as some girl's future husband.

Isn't It So?

Better a bare foot than no foot.

It's a good blade that bends well.

A lucky physician is better than a learned one.

In many instances, when money goes, so goes the ego.

Man learns little from victory, but much from defeat.

If you expect to get to heaven you must go in that direction.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 24.—For the first time in 15 years I succumbed to a nostalgic hanker and visited the editorial room of a newspaper the other evening. The entire building was dizzily vibrating from the whirr of a bulldog edition. Everywhere tension. Had I a son I would desire him to be a newspaperman.

Those of us who wear journalism lightly like a new tie from Charvet, writing our futile little pieces in cushioned ease and sending them in, are only timid waders in the terrifying ocean of black ink. Playing ping-pong, to mix the metaphor, on the edge of a vast jungle of thrills.

One is not a newspaperman until, called from a poker game, he has galvanized calmly into that mysterious force that receives the flash "Titanic sinking!" and knows exactly what to do. Or hides a weak brother's derelictions from the managing editor at risk of his head. Or borrows 50 cents from a printer for Monday's lunch.

Nothing on the surface offers the haphazardy of an editorial room. Nobody seems to know exactly what it's all about—and cares less. The few office rules are always broken. The cub, instead of humility, becomes an irreverently flip questioner of authority. * * *

But let a call for duty sound, from warehouse fire to Park Avenue murder, and no well trained army executes such definiteness and precision. The best newspaperman in the world cannot explain it. It is biological. Northcliffe, indeed, called it: "Ink in the blood."

No forthright newspaperman ever expunged the cloy of printer's ink from his nostrils without constantly sniffing the winds and pawing, like the stricken bull in the ring, for a charge again into danger. Floyd Gibbons zips like a shot to success on the radio, but when the war drums beat he went up the gangplank for China—a reporter. * * *

Herbert Swope tries to console himself with a specious belief he is an industrialist or what not. He may be, but most he's an ink-stained wretch who will slip back into the fold. Watch! No bad penny has the flair for coming back a newspaperman has.

Unhappiest people I know—the list is long—are newspapermen becoming all a sudden Riviera novelists or penthouse short story writers. My reason for not haunting editorial shops is fear of a sudden seizure to return to an active blood pumping job and I'm a weak woman! For a lazy oaf to tinker with active newspapering after 40 is flirting with oblivion. Or worse—coasting to the barren outland of hope, the exchange desk.

* * *

In ways the reporter is bravest of all loyal serfs. He knows in a few years he will crack on the furious wheel. He fabricates no sentimental excuses for himself—that he must think of his dear ones and get out. He thinks only of his job and while it lasts he would not trade it for any job in the world. Cowards, such as I, see the storm coming, retreat to namby-pamby journalism and spend what is left of careers in regrets.

* * *

Quitting reporting curdled life for America's best reporter—Frank Ward O'Malley. He found the flattery of magazine recognition wormwood and flitted from Switzerland to Brielle, N. J., and vice versa, a bird of passage always on the wing. Each spring he came back to loaf with Dex Fellows at circus headquarters. He knew the newspaper boys—even that valiant die-hard, Martin Greene, who stuck to his guns—would drift in and out. From Vevay in Switzerland he postcarded me in Paris: "Matterhorn, your Aunt Safrona's tippet! I'll take Andy Horn." Irvin Cobb bristles at any occupational designation save reporter. And means it!

* * *

The reporter's life begins every day from scratch. He lights his feeble little candle and hopes, but doubts very much, it will blaze around the world. In comparison to the real abilities of a forthright reporter, rewards are slim. His bulge on humanity is that no two days are alike. And ask any bloated capitalist if that isn't pretty largely his idea of paradise!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Why does love fail us?" she cries, facing the world embittered and torn by her broken marriage.

I doubt if it does, my dear. To the contrary, I suspect we fail love.

We have such childish, unreasonable dreams about love. We expect it to be a perpetual Santa Claus, giving us all those things we've failed to find or achieve in our years of loneliness.

Contentment—how we've longed for that! We've always been so discontented, so restless and dissatisfied with our lot. But now that this new glory of love has dawned, surely we'll be satisfied! For life will be made over. There'll be no more boring monotony, no more exasperating shabbiness; and the days will dawn on tip-toe with delight.

We won't be cross any more, either. We've always been pretty peevish, flying into tantrums over trifles. But love will cure that, too. For how can we ever be irritable again with our hearts so flooded with tenderness?

And we'll want to live! We'll show all these people who said we were lazy, ambitionless, that they were wrong. We weren't really lazy, ever. But life wasn't worth living; that was the trouble. So why make the effort? But now, with this dear one by our side, no effort will be too great to make.

And we'll be happy! Someone has come at last to give us the joy we've always missed; the enduring ecstasy.

So we rush joyously into the new adventure.

But presently we are lagging, halting, falling—hurt and crippled—and crying angrily.

"Something's wrong! Love isn't what I thought it was going to be. I thought it would change my whole life, but instead I am worse off. Things are as tiresome and provoking as ever, and I'm even more unhappy. I've been tricked! Love's a lie! This person I've married is a malicious stranger. Oh, why did this have to happen to me?"

So we blame love—for what really is our own fault. For why should we expect love to perform such impossible miracles?

Contentment, good temper, ambition, happiness—these things are OUR own job, part of the development and adjustment of our own character for which we alone are responsible. They are NOT up to love. And it's childish to blame love for not doing a job which we should do ourselves.

It's equally childish to blame the other fellow because he won't live up to your expectations.

Such beautiful expectations as you had for him, or her! How brave this partner of yours was to be; how patient, and kind, and wise, and merry!

IN SHORT, HE OR SHE WAS TO BE THE PERFECT LIVING EXPRESSION OF ALL THOSE NOBLE QUALITIES WHICH YOU'VE NEVER BOTHERED TO ACHIEVE YOURSELF — AND WHAT A VICARIOUS KICK YOU WERE GOING TO GET OUT OF ALL THIS SECOND-HAND SAINTLINESS!

But look what happened! Instead of expressing YOUR fond dreams, the wretch insisted on Being Himself, regardless of your pleasure or comfort! That's gratitude for you, after all your wonderful faith in him or her!

But was it really faith? Or was it just your own egotism, trying to play God?

And are you really a pitiful victim? Or did you just get what was coming to you?

No, stranger; love doesn't fail us. We fail love.

Love can help us.

Love can comfort us.

Love can inspire us.

But love can't MAKE us.

We must make ourselves—kill our own snakes—consume our own smoke.

And if we're too lazy or cowardly or stupid or impatient to do these things for ourselves, then what?

THEN THAT'S OUR BAD LUCK—AND OUR OWN PRIVATE FAULT — WHETHER WE'RE MARRIED OR SINGLE.

The Human Side of the News

Weird Fads of Young Women—The Tragic Case Of Elsie Siegel—A Tot Saved from the General Slocum

By EDWIN C. HILL

AT a dinner party the other night a pompous and loquacious gentleman was denouncing the modern young woman. He flayed her. The general theme of his lecture was that the modern young woman has no balance, runs after strange gods, and is the slave of weird fads. In short, practically a psychopathic case. I think that's all nonsense. There have always been foolish, silly girls who do foolish, silly things, but in no age or time are all girls to be condemned because of the folly of the few.

I recall, back some years, when it was a great fad with some young women to go down into Chinatown and read the Bible to freshly-imported coolies. A good deal of unhappiness and tragedy came out of that. One of the girls who taught in these Sunday schools for Chinese was the granddaughter of a famous general in the Union Army. She was Elsie Siegel, and her grandfather was Maj. Gen. Franz Siegel, one of Grant's best commanders. She became so obsessed with the Chinese and their ways that she spent most of her time in the dingy quarter off Chatham Square.

Then she became infatuated with a smooth short-haired Chinese named Leung Lim. And one night my city editor rushed me uptown to a squalid, miserable room above a chop suey joint in Eighth avenue. I got there with the police. And presently an old man hunter named Capt. Carey lifted the lid of a trunk. Inside the trunk was all that was left of poor Elsie.

Her yellow lover had tired of her. We found 35 of her letters in that room, pathetic, imploring letters. Some weeks later the hounds of the law ran Leung Lim down and his accomplices and they burned in the chair. And after that, missionary work by young girls just about died out in Chinatown. So you see, there are fads in all ages.

The Burning of the General Slocum

MANY years ago, in the bright month of June, an old steamboat named the General Slocum threshed her way up the East River, jammed with 1,400 women and children—the annual excursion and outing of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Fire started in the forward part of the boat, leaped out of control and swept the old craft from end to end. Hundreds of thousands watched the dreadful spectacle from both banks of the river, helpless to aid. And after a while, the boat, a charred hulk of death, stranded on North Brother Island, in Hell Gate.

I was sent to cover the Alexander avenue police station, in the Bronx, to which hundreds of bodies were carried as they were taken from the river. I do not want to recall the tragedy and the ghastliness of the story, or to think of the row on row of bodies that covered the floor, or of the pyramid of dead children in one corner. I want to tell you about the little heroine of the mystery—the child God had in His keeping that day.

A baby girl of four, she sat in an armchair on one side of the room, her big blue eyes wide with interest, her round little face quite serene and untroubled. She had come out of the burned boat somehow—nobody knew how then or ever—and her yellow hair and bright red dress were as neat as a new doll's, with not a drop of water or a smudge of soot to sully their prim perfection. Her eyes traveled all about the room, taking in the whole dreadful scene, the silent sheeted figures at her very feet—her chubby, neat-slippered feet which were a long way from reaching the floor. And she gazed curiously at the screaming women and the moaning men, obviously puzzled as to the meaning of it all—this little child who had never been introduced to the Dark Angel.

How Did She Escape the Holocaust?

SHE wasn't frightened by the dead or shaken by her own experience. Hour after hour she sat primly upright, a quaint little maiden, until a man burst into the room, white-faced—frenzied. She saw him at once and scrambled from her chair.

"Oh, Papa!" she cried, "where is mamma and brother and sister and baby?"

The father, Charles Kregler, of 257 Avenue B, caught up his child in a perfect agony of love and held her close for minutes before he could utter a word. His wife and four children had been on the boat, and all were gone except this child, Lizzie. When he left the room he was almost crushing her in his arms, and the last glimpse we reporters had of them was a wealth of golden hair and a red, red, dress and a happy baby smile. I wonder where she is now!

Tell me, how did that child come alive out of a holocaust and a peril of deep waters? How did she get there, as neat and unspotted as when she was so lovingly dressed by the mother she was never to see again? Was it, as Milton says, "that power which men call chance?" Or, shall we say with the poet Cowper, "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform?"

A SLAVE TO FORM

By Winifred Black

Mary Ellen has stopped trying to be "correct."

From this out, Mary Ellen is going to be human—and let it go at that. And you ought to see the way her husband is beginning to pick up.

He says, "Life is actually worth living now that Mary Ellen has 'come to.'"

There's the family table for instance.

Mary Ellen has been fretting over doilies and stewing over linens and messing about with what she calls, or did call in the days of her darkest slavery to "form"—dainty desserts.

She spent a quarter of her housekeeping allowance on foods and three-fourths of that allowance on decorations and service. Everything was brought in from the kitchen—"a la russe." And poor Mary in the kitchen had to fuss so much about courses that she let things burn or took them off the stove too soon or whisked away poor George W.'s plate before he was half through.

When George W. had his salary cut Mary Ellen had to let poor Mary in the kitchen go, and do the cooking herself.

And she just couldn't bother with entree and do-dads. She had to put her mind on some good solid food and stop using so many doilies and things.

The other night I happened to run in just at dinner time and there was a great big round platter of good old "mulligan stew." There were hot biscuits to go with it and you ought to have seen poor, hungry George W. wade in.

He had three good big cups of coffee, too, and they were served with the stew and not after it.

Mary Ellen apologized for the big cups of coffee.

"Don't excuse yourself Mary Ellen," said George W. "I'm just beginning to live. I hope I'll never see a doily or a fruit salad glass cup with a dab of something sourish and sweetish in it again as long as I live.

"Mary Ellen is giving me ham and eggs and old-fashioned griddle cakes for breakfast these days and I feel like a new man. The first thing you know I'll be yelling 'Three cheers for the depression'."

After George W. had gone down town to a directors' meeting, Mary Ellen said to me:

"Of course, I don't say much to George W. about it, but I am really having kind of a good time feeding him up with the plain, old-fashioned things he likes. I've had to cut out the bridge club and last week I missed the lecture on 'Whither Are We Drifting,' and you know I was glad of an excuse to get out of it.

"I've been bridged to death and lectured to death and I'm afraid I'm just common woman after all. I like to cook the things for my man and then we sit around and read together or turn on the radio and we are beginning to get acquainted all over again—isn't it queer?"

But somehow I don't think it is queer at all myself. I think it is human and natural and fine.

I wonder what the rest of you think about it anyhow?
